Rule of Majority Must Be Enforced Declares Harding

He Asserts That Domination by Groups or Classes by Force Must Be Ended.

APPEAL TO PREJUDICE CALLED TRAITORS' ACT

"A Free American Has Right to Labor Without Asking Others' Leave," He Says.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Marion, Ohio, July 4.—With an emphatic declaration that the constitution and laws sponsored by the majority must be enforced, President Harding addressing his "friends and neighbors" who assembled at the fair grounds here today to celebrate his home-coming declared that "menaces do arise, which must be suppressed by the government pending their efacement by public opinion."

Coupled with the assertion was the prediction that "America will go on, and that the fundamentals of the republic and all its liberties will be preserved."

During his address, the president touched on prohibition, discussed the right of "a free America" not only to labor "without any other's leave," but "to bargain collectively," reviewed the history of Marion, which is celebrating its 100th birthday anniversary, and told a number of incidents of his earlier life. He spoke from a grandstand filled with "home folks" and visitors from surrounding territory. Massed in front of him was a huge crowd. It was estimated there were at least 25,000 persons in the throng. The weather was cool.

Given Ovation.

On their arrival at the fair grounds, the President and Mrs. Harding were given an ovation, while frequently during his address, the executive was interrupted by applause.

General Pershing, who also delivered an address, was applauded when he advocated "fearless" use of "the strong arm of the law in communities which openly sympathize with ruthless murder of inoffensive people in the exercise of the right to earn a livelihood."

President Harding joined in the handclapping which followed this statement.

The president mentioned the 18th amendment in connection with his advocacy of strict law enforcement. Declaring that "majorities, restrained to insure protection of minorities, ever must rule," he added.

On Prohibition.

"The 18th amendment denies to a minority a fancied sense of personal liberty but the amendment is the will of America and must be sustained by the government and public opinion, else contempt for the law will undermine our very foundations."

Departing frequently from the prepared text of his speech, Mr. Harding, with a smile, told how he, a "green village youth" once rode into Marion from the nearby town of Caledonia, his former home, on a "stubborn mule." At another juncture he remarked that "back in 1895" he dropped into the "express office" to see "some of the fellows" there about a civic celebration.

Eyes Opened.

There was a burst of applause when the president said he would "welcome the day when I can come back to stay with you permanently."

"Some of you may think it's a fine thing to be president," Mr. Harding remarked. "Keep on thinking it—you'll find the situation very different when you wake up."

On the program for "informal remarks," Charles C. Dawes, former director of the budget bureau, spoke briefly, concluding with the observation that the president "has a strong cabinet, but the cabinet has a stronger Harding."

Brief speeches were made by Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger, George B. Christian, secretary to president, and Brigadier-General Sawyer, the president's physician. All are residents of Marion.

Visits Old Office.

Shortly before noon today the president strolled down to The Marion Star building from the home of his father, Dr. G. T. Harding. Climbing the stairs to his father's office on the second floor, the president made a long-hand draft of his address. Across the hall was the room which he occupied for years as editor of The Star—his old desk still in its customary place.

Before leaving the building, the president went into every department, greeting each employee by name as he shook hands.

The President and Mrs. Harding spent the evening quietly at Dr. Harding's home with members of the family and a few friends who dropped in to call.

Commenting in a general way on the industrial situation, the president made this observation:

Right to Labor.

"A free American has the right to labor without any other's leave. It

DYE FRAUD CHARGE TO BE AIRED SOON BEFORE CONGRESS

Hint That Move of President Was Instigated by New England Textile Interests.

NEED OF GERMAN DYES SAID TO BE MOTIVE

Matter Will Probably Come Up During Debate on Dye Schedules in the Tariff Bill.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, July 4.—The anti-war-fraud move of President Harding and Atorney-General Daugherty against the Chemical Foundation, organized by leaders of the Wilson administration, will be dragged not only through the courts but all over the floors of congress.

And, if Alien Property Custodian Miller acts promptly in seeking to force return of the German patents, copyrights, etc., held by the foundation as he has said he would, the battle around this outstanding issue may be raging simultaneously in the courts and in the senate. Immediately after the senate concludes work on the agricultural tariffs now under discussion, it will take up dye schedules. And debate on the latter, both democrats and republicans have announced, will involve the Chemical Foundation and will lift the lid again on the smouldering charges that a dye lobby is at work in the legislative halls of the nation.

The senate debate will reveal strange bed-fellows. For example, Senator King, democrat, Utah, states he will strongly support the president's action against the foundation, declaring "the very men who seized the patents conspired to buy them. They spent $600,000 in propaganda. The sale was fraudulent, illegal and immoral."

Need Dyes.

It is noteworthy that those who have promptly come to the defense of the Chemical Foundation have charged that the move is one strongly in the interests of Germany. And the bitter fight in congress against continuing the present embargo on German dyes promises to have its counterpart in the expected effort to keep German dyes off the high levy list when the chemical schedules are reached.

The fight against continuation of the German dye embargo has been led by Senator Moses, of New Hampshire. New England textile industries need these dyes, it has beeen claimed, and the American monopoly on the product effected through continuance of the embargo, has worked against their best interests, it has been said.

Friends of Francis P. Garvan, president of the Chemical Foundation, profess to see a direct connection between the fight against the dye embargo, the fight on the foundation for return of its German patents, including dye patents, and recent activities of Germans and Americans interested in the German dye monopoly.

Involves German Interests.

From this, it would seem certain that the counter-attack of Garvan, Former Attorney-General Palmer and others concerned in the administration move to get back former German property now held by the foundation, will involve these alleged German interests.

Representative Woodruff, republican, Michigan, whose constant demand for an investigation of the attorney-general's office probably is responsible more than any single thing for the present move against the foundation, intimated Tuesday that all the hubbub over dyes was merely a cover for other equally important activities of the foundation.

"Of the several thousand patents disposed of by Alien Property Custodian Garvan to the Chemical Foundation, Inc.," Woodruff said, "there were hundreds which in no way bore any relation to dye manufacture. It is noteworthy that the propagandists, sent out to create public sentiment for the foundation in order, it was said, to protect the infant dye industry of America, carefully refrained from making public this fact."

Marion Police Chief Dies From Injuries In Fall From Auto

Marion, Ohio, July 4—(By the Associated Press.)—Edward Masterson, captain of police here, died today from injuries sustained last night in a fall from an automobile after piloting President Harding's automobile to the home of the president's father. He attempted to alight from the automobile while it was in motion, and fell backward from the running board, striking his head on the street pavement.

Mr. Masterson was a close friend of President and Mrs. Harding.

Finds Confession To Texas Killing In Old Machine

Atlanta Woman Discovered Aged Document From Dying Man.

A faded, dirty, wrinkled letter, signed by one Henry Sharp, headed Hallsville, Texas, January 20, 1890, declaring that Sharp shot and killed one Ed Konerick near Hottentot, Fayette county, Texas, on the first night of October, 1884, has been found in a sewing machine drawer by an Atlanta woman living on Jones avenue.

The letter is written on a small piece of soft-finished thick paper, about three and one-half by eight inches. It was found in a sewing machine drawer which had been used by the owner 14 years. The machine was bought in Columbus, Ga., as new, but the owner suspects it was only worked over and that a previous owner had hidden the confession there. She was anxious that the confession be published on the chance of its freeing the name of a man mentioned therein, A. L. George. It appears from the contents of the letter that George was thought to have been the murderer.

The letter reads as follows:

"Hallsville, Texas, January 20, 1890.

"I, H. M. Sharp, conscious of approaching death and knowing that I must soon die, make the following statement: On the first night of October, 1884, at a small village called Hottentot in Fayette county, Texas, near his little grocery store, I shot and killed Ed Konerick. I was drinking some when I got in this trouble over a box of sardines. A. L. George had nothing to do with the killing, neither was he present at the time. Under oath I sign my name to this statement.

"HENRY SHARP."

Efforts are being made to discover the status of the alleged killing in Texas thirty-eight years ago.

TO LAUNCH GREAT WORLD EXPOSITION

Hundreds of Patriotic Georgians Will Meet Here This Week—Lane May Direct Event.

Organization plans of the Georgia world's fair and exposition commission will be formed at a meeting to be held in the roof garden of the Ansley hotel, Friday morning, which will be attened by several hundred of the leading citizens of the state, it was announced Tuesday. S. G. McLendon, secretary of state, will preside as temporary chairman. The city of Savannah will send a delegation of 40 citizens, while other delegations from all parts of Georgia are expected. It is planned to form a commission of 50 members, selected from various parts of the state. This commission will be given full charge of the organization work and will direct the movement to hold a world's fair in Georgia in 1926.

Lane to Lead?

Secretary McLendon received a letter Tuesday from Mayor J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, and a letter from Victor Rosewater, secretary of the Philadelphia sesqui-centennial exposition, in which it was stated there would be no conflict between the exposition planned for Georgia in 1926 and the exposition planned for Philadelphia. The Philadelphia men wrote that the expositions would be of mutual advantage and that both would benefit through the world publicity to be given the enterprises.

The movement to hold the Georgia exposition has been discussed for several years and will take tangible shape Friday. Although no definite statement has been made as to the officers there is a well defined movement on foot to elect Mills B. Lane, Savannah banker, as head of the enterprise.

The Savannah board of trade recently sent out invitations to civic organizations, municipalities and chambers of commerce requesting them to send delegations to the meeting. A special invitation was sent to several hundred farmers to attend.

McLendon Pleased.

"There is no doubt now that Georgia will hold a great world's exposition in 1926," Secretary McLendon said Tuesday. "The preliminary work has been accomplished and we are assured that the leading people of the state will get behind the project and put it over.

"The movement is one that has the support of all the people and is a movement against which not one word can be said. It will be kept free from politics and will be based purely on the desire of all the people to get together and do something really worth while for the state. It is the last oportunity many of this generation will have to perform real public service and we have been well pleased with the spirit which has developed in reference to the enterprise."

Atlanta is expected to be represented at the meeting by a delegation of about a hundred men and women. The Atlanta delegation will be se-

GEORGIA ASSEMBLY RECONVENES TODAY TO FACE TAX FIGHT

FARM DEPARTMENT BONE OF CONTENTION

Want Investigation of J. J. Brown Regime—Present Tax Law Supporters May Filibuster.

Members of the legislature will resume their sessions today at the capitol after celebrating the Fourth of July, and it is expected that two spirited fights will begin within a short time after the sound of opening gavels. One of the fights will begin in the senate when the movement to repeal the tax equalization law will be launched. The second contest probably will develop simultaneously in both branches when bills will be introduced calling for a legislative investigation of the administration of affairs in the state department of agriculture.

One of the most enjoyable features of the session will be the private showing at 8 o'clock Wednesday night of the film depicting the recent official tour of the national forest reservations in the northeast Georgia mountains, which was conducted under the auspices of The Constitution.

All Members Invited.

Governor Hardwick has extended invitations to members of both houses to witness the films which show in a vivid manner the most picturesque sections in America traversed by the government officials. The showing will be made in the house of representatives, members of the local better films committee arranging the details.

"The Citizen and His Government" is the appropriate title of one picture; the other is of the forest tour which is expected to acquaint the legislators with many lurid sights existing in the famous mountain sections of Georgia never before photographed by a moving picture camera. It is expected that The Constitution's movement to develop this notable section will receive the unqualified support of the Georgia lawmakers after they have seen the actual beauties that exist so near the state's capital.

It is learned that leaders of the move for the repeal of the tax equalization law are confident that they will win their fight in the senate, and the interesting report is current that opponents of the plan to repeal this measure are preparing for a vigorous filibuster by which they hope to thwart the design of the repeal advocates.

No details of the plans of either the "standpatters" who favor the retention of the law, or of the leaders in the fight to repeal the tax measure have been made public, but both sides appear to be confident of victory.

Fight on Brown.

The fight on the state department of agriculture will be led in the senate by Senator L. C. Brown, of the fiftieth, and in the house by Representative Zack Arnold, of Clay. Last year, Senator Brown prosecuted an aggressive fight for an investigation of the department of agriculture but was defeated in his purpose by a close vote. Representative Arnold will call up his resolution asking the commissioner of agriculture to furnish the house with a complete list of all the employees of the department, including all who have worked in that department during the last 12 months.

Another interesting measure which will be introduced in the legislature shortly after it reconvenes is a resolution returning the official thanks of the state of Georgia to the soldiers of this state who served in the world war. It was pointed out Tuesday that Georgia is one of the few states in the union which has not taken official action of this kind. There are some members of the legislature who declare that Georgia should follow the lead of other states and provide some kind of modified bonus system for the Georgia soldiers, but no definite movement of this character has been launched.

It was learned Tuesday that the first bill to be introduced in the legislature by the better films committee will be presented soon. This bill provides for the installation of motion picture equipment in two state institutions at Milledgeville, the boys' training school and the girls' training school.

Illustrate Movie Bill.

Governor Hardwick has approved this measure and has extended an invitation to the better films committee of Atlanta to show in the house Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, pictures of the type which would be used under the provision of this bill. All members of the better films committee are invited to view these pictures, the members of the senate and the house of representatives to be special guests on this occasion.

"A Citizen and His Government" is the title of one of the films to be shown, and portrays in a very graphic

A Sabbath Calm Prevails During Glorious Fourth

Little Raindrops Dampen Sparks of Patriotic Fire.

Atlanta Tuesday celebrated the one hundred and forty-sixth Fourth of July and in all probability it was the quietest Fourth ever observed here. It was so quiet in the down town section that traffic cops left the red lights burning for nearly an hour at a time and traffic was undisturbed. The only people working were newspaper reporters, telegraph messengers and vaudeville actors. Somebody shot a fire cracker on Peachtree street and woke up five taxicab drivers, a hotel clerk and two members of the legislature who were the only people visible in public places.

Nearly everybody who could get out of town was out Tuesday. Some went to the woods and picked damp red ants out of stuffed eggs and called it a picnic. Others drove automobiles along country roads, fixed punctures, cussed blowouts and pumped up refractory tires. Loads of people sardined in street cars, hied themselves to Lakewood park and, amid much shouting and merry quipping rode wooden horses, popped themselves on whips, jolted themselves on roller coasters and otherwise mangled themselves on rides. Legislators went home and brushed up by reading the Congressional Record.

Just a whisper of excitement was caused in the Kimball house lobby when Henson Tatum, the well-known scrivener, appeared disguised as a state senator, wearing a pair of white shoes and a high collar. He woke up the cigar clerk and told him a merry jest. He said he had found a fire cracker and a golf ball. He said he knew he could shoot the fire cracker but didn't know about shooting the golf ball. The cigar clerk went back to sleep.

Capitol Is Guarded.

In regard to shooting there was a guard stationed at the door of the state capitol. He was there to prevent the shooting of fire works in the capitol halls. He said the legislature had been in session for several days and that there had been too much shooting.

There was a rumor abroad that baseball was being played at Ponce de Leon park. Inasmuch as there hasn't been any baseball played in that park for some time those who attended the spectacle were unable to confirm the rumor.

It was just one hundred and forty-six years ago that the Declaration of Independence was signed. S. G. McLendon, secretary of state, said it wasn't signed on the Fourth of July at all but really was signed on August 21. His statement, however, did not deter the celebrants, although he had the historic data to prove his assertion.

Many Kinds of Noise.

The candidates and orators were here, there and everywhere, co-starred with bursting fire crackers, a double-header baseball program, band concerts in various parts of the city, parades and rain—the last named having played an important part in the day's festivities for the past several years.

Tuesday morning broke with a crispy tang in the atmosphere which continued almost the entire day. At intervals showers from the private stock of old Jupiter Pluvius interspersed with a cool breeze coming from a southwest direction made the day perfect—for sleeping. This, however, did not interfere with plans of

Women Organize Assembly Lobby For Legal Rights

Campaign to Remove Discriminations in Georgia Law Being Waged.

Constituiton Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, July 4.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—That an immediate readjustment of Georgia's laws affecting discriminations against women is necessary is, according to Lavinia H. Egan, national organizer of the national women's party, the specific reason for the campaign now being conducted in that state during the meeting of the legislature.

"Although people claim that they know all about this equality bill," said Miss Egan today, "they are going to hear about it again and again until such antequated laws as now exist have been entirely discarded.

"It is encouraging to see how congressmen in particular are responding to our campaign. Not only have the majority of them expressed their unqualified approval of such a measure, but they are lending valuable support as well. This change of attitude is indeed a promising sign and will, I believe, pave the way for a better understanding and make fair competition between men and women possible.

Must Stay Alert.

"But," continued Miss Egan, "we cannot rest content with this relenting view of politicians, but must be ever on the alert to constantly urge the removal of all hindrances now affecting women, that on the conclusion of

DUBLIN REBELLION NOW STAMPED OUT BY FREE STATERS

Few Isolated Posts Still Held by Insurgents Are Being Cleaned Up Rapidly.

EAMONN DE VALERA RUMORED WOUNDED

Rebel Leader Supposed to Have Been in the Hotel Hamman, But He Was Not Among Prisoners.

Dublin, July 4.—(Censored.)—Free State troops, using new and spectacular fighting tactics, claim to have all but crushed the Dublin rebellion. The few remaining positions held by insurgents, mostly isolated posts in weakly defended buildings, are being cleared out rapidly by machine gun squads who are moving from building to building hunting out rebel nests.

Announcement that the revolt had been broken and that the final mopping up of the last remaining rebel posts was going on came from General O'Duffy, commanding the Free State troops, after further decisive gains had been made during Tuesday's fighting.

Regulars have captured the Hamman hotel and the Sackville street postoffice, two of the strongest rebel positions. Field guns were then leveled on the Fresham hotel and several smaller buildings.

Only Twenty Left.

When the Hammam fell, only twenty rebels were left defending it, the others having escaped during the night when defeat seemed inevitable. The last-ditchers held out gamely against the bombardment during the forenoon, but as shell after shell pounded against the scarred walls, surrender seemed the only thing left. The little band of rebels signalled the attackers. The guns stopped. And the insurgents lined up bearing a white flag at the head of their column and filed out and surrendered to the Free State commander.

There was an unconfirmed rumor that Eamonn de Valera had been wounded during the shelling of the hotel, which he made his headquarters when he took personal command of his men after General Rory O'Connor fell into the hands of the Free Staters. But if de Valera was in the hotel during the battle, he succeeded in escaping, for he was not among those surrendering when the building was taken.

Free State troops have adopted view fighting methods with demoralizing effect. They are directing their fire at definite objectives, instead of making general attacks. Inroads on rebel positions have increased as a result and the quick capture of the Hammam hotel and other Sackville street positions are due to the new style of fighting.

Machine Guns Busy.

Machine gunners played a leading part in Tuesday's battle, searching out rebel barricades and shooting a drilling stream of bullets into them. Rebel defenders were unable to stand up against this form of attack and were kept jumping to new posts of safety.

Just before daylight the battle took on pyrotechnic features that resembled an American Fourth of July fireworks display, when the early morning blackness was shot with the bursts of flame from exploding bombs, and vivid darting flashes from machine guns and rifles.

Turret cars and lorries mounted with machine guns were hauled up for close-range fighting in the afternoon.

Smoke Screens.

The Free Staters inaugurated smoke screen protection for a sudden-hand-grenade attack. This spectacular assault developed an anti-climax when the regulars failed to follow up their first gains by rushing the retreating rebels.

The situation in the provinces is increasingly critical with heavy fighting in Drogheda. Millmount barracks held by the rebels are reported in flames with regulars closing in around them. Free State forces have captured an increasing number of midland enters. Rebels, however, are concentrating heavily in Clonmel, in Tipperary, where they are reported to have resorted to conscription.

HERRICK INJURED WHEN CAMPAIGN PLANE CRASHES

Memphis, Tenn., July 4.—Representative Herrick, of Oklahoma, who left Memphis this morning in an airplane for Perry, Okla., was slightly injured when his plane fell near Hamlin, a short distance from Lynne.

It was stated that Mr. Herrick's injuries were confined to bruises. E. G. Person, an aviator, also was slightly injured.

According to advices, engine trouble developed and the plane was landed in a field near Hamlin. The trouble apparently had been remedied and the plane hopped off again but crashed into a tree and fell. The plane was wrecked according to the message.

TRACKMEN STRIKE AGAIN POSTPONED, PENDING PARLEY

President Grable States 400,000 Maintenance of Way Men Will Stay on Job.

NOT WISE TO STRIKE NOW, SAYS STATEMENT

Announcement Is Signed by Officials of Union and Quorum of Executive Board.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, July 4.—The threatened strike of 400,000 maintenance of way employees of the country's railways was postponed tonight pending further negotiations, E. F. Grable, president of the maintenance workers, announced after an all-day conference with members of the United States railroad labor board.

"After most careful consideration of the entire stiuation we have reached the conclusion that it is not wise for our membership to leave the service of the carriers until every resource has been exhausted that affords a hope of a peaceful adjustment," said the announcement which was signed by Mr. Grable, three vice presidents of the union and a quorum of the executive board constituting a subcommittee of the executive board of grand lodge officers.

All-Day Session.

The conference resulted from the personal efforts of Walter L. McMenimen and Ben W. Hooper, of the labor boad. Mr. McMenimen, a member of the labor group on the board, arranged the conference by phone Saturday with Mr. Grable, who was in Detroit canvasing the strike vote of his organization. This vote was said to be largely in favor of a walkout.

Accompanied by J. C. Smock, vice president, and members of his executive council, Mr. Grable arrived in Chicago from Detroit this morning and immediately went into conference with Mr. McMenimen and Chairman Hooper, of the board. Except for a brief adjournment for lunch, the session continued all day. The formal announcement was not made until after 6 o'clock and it outlined the course of action decided by the track men as follows:

"First—To instruct our chairman on each carrier to take up promptly with the management all the grievances and controversies outstanding between the members of our organization and the carriers, for the purpose of negotiating a speedy adjustment, the matters to be taken up, among others to embrace a revision of the recent wage decision of the railroad labor board, certain changes in our rules and the question of contracting out the labor of the classes of employees included in our organization. That the carriers could not well hesitate to consider a revision of the wage decision is indicated by the fact that many of them have already been offering certain changes favorable to certain classes.

Right-of-Way.

"Second—In case of failure to secure from any carrier fair and reasonable concessions in regard to the various matters involved, to bring these matters before the railroad labor board with the assurance that they shall be given the right-of-way for prompt consideration and decision.

"Third—To continue work under

SENATOR WATSON REPORTED WORSE

Members of Family Say Attack Will Keep Him From Duties for Some Time.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, July 4.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The condition of Senator Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, who has been confined to his bed for several days on account of an attack of bronchitis, was reported to be worse today.

Statements from members of the Georgia senator's family were to the effect that he would be unable to resume his duties in the senate for some time.

It was due to this malady that Senator Watson was ordered by his physician to cancil his Fourth of July speaking engagement at Gainsvile.

N., C. & St. L. Line Protects Bridges With Armed Men

Officials State That Action Is Precautionary and Is Caused by No Overt Act of Striking Shopmen.

STRIKERS WILL IGNORE REINSTATEMENT OFFER

Conflicting Claims Made on Effectiveness of the Strike—Mass Meeting of Strikers Today.

As a precaution against any attempt to destroy its property of otherwise interfere with its schedule during the progress of the existing nation-wide strike of the railway shopcrafts, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway Tuesday night stationed armed guards at each of its bridges between Atlanta and Chattanooga.

Trestles and other railway property will remain under guard until the strike has ended, officials of the road announced. No overt act on the part of the strikers occasioned the precautionary step, it was stated.

Other roads contemplate taking similar action, it was reported Tuesday. As far as is known no disorder has occurred thus far.

The guards were deputized by sheriffs of the various counties traversed by the N. C. & St. L. They will receive their compensation from the road.

Picketing Is Begun.

Peaceful picketing of Atlanta railway shops was begun by the striking shopmen Independence Day. They are under explicit orders to conduct themselves in an orderly manner. The picketing is for the purpose of informing applicants for work of the fact that a strike is in progress and of explaining to them the strikers' side of the controversy, so the leaders of the men assert.

Conflicting statements were issued from union headquarters and from the railway officials in regard to the effectiveness of the walkout.

G. C. Whipple, business agent for the shopmen's organization, asserted that there were practically no applications for work at the various shops during the day. Officials of the N. C. and St. L., however, stated that about 75 of the 250 open positions had been filled during the day by returning employees and new men.

Mr. Whipple announced receipt of reports indicating that trains are leaving late and running behind schedule generally as a result of the strike. N. C. & St. L. officials, however, stated that the road had handled 148 more cars for the 24-hour period July 4 than it handled for the corresponding time with a full force last year.

"We are having no trouble in placing and maintaining our trains in order," officials said. "There is no delay in schedules and no trains are being discontinued. Service will be rendered without curtailment or inconvenience of any kind to the traveling public and we are going ahead with our preparations for an excursion between Atlanta and Chattanooga on July 8."

Will Ignore Ultimatums.

Ultimatums issued by certain roads Monday, setting a time limit for men wishing to return to their accustomed duties, will be utterly ignored, according to Whipple. The N. C. & St. L. has advised employees who walked out that unless they return by 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon they will be considered as having permanently withdrawn from the service. The Atlanta joint terminals and the Georgia railroad have informed their striking shopmen that they will be required to report for duty at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning if they desire reinstatement.

Strike Meeting Today.

A mass meeting of strikers to be held in the City Auditorium at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning will be addressed by Jerome Jones, editor of the Journal of Labor. J. H. Osburn, president of the Atlanta Federated Shopcrafts, will preside.

At a gathering of shopmen Tuesday at the labor temple, a committee of five was appointed to select a time and place for holding a mass meeting to which the general public will be invited. Several prominent speakers will be on the program, according to their plans.

The committee consists of Charles Hilt, G. C. Whipple, J. S. Price, C. B. Householder and John Scott.

FRELINGHUYSEN WARNS AGAINST ANARCHISM

Ocean Grove, N. J., July 4.—Warning against un-American doctrines and propaganda was given by Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, in an Independence day address here today.

"Upon every hand," said Senator Frelinghuysen, "is heard a discordant voice altogether un-American, a doctrine which aims to subvert the choicest conceptions of duty of citizenship as taught by the fathers of the republic and practiced by their sons. We heard a new theme, internationalism, it is called ,which assures us that we are citizens of the world and that we owe no duty to the state. Sad indeed will be our fate if we have come to that pass. Are we ready to follow the black flag? Will we rally around the flag? Are we willing to discard all flags? Or is the Star Spangled Banner good enough for you?

Senator Frelinghuysen asked his audience to "scotch the serpent of anarchism now abroad in our land," and said that akin to the danger of "bolshevism and I. W. W.ism was class given and class legislation. He also referred apparently to the proposal of Senator Lafollette, republican, Wisconsin, for limitation of supreme court powers, saying that "it is fashionable to attack the highest tribunal in the land, to teach scorn and disregard for established institutions."

"These dangerous doctrines," he declared, "proclaimed in high places, show disregard for law and a weakening of the national spirit which made us a great nation."

Senator Frelinghuysen also declared for law enforcement and added:

"There is a tendency among certain prominent officials to preach disregard for the law under the camouflage of 'modification' which means nothing less than nullification of the constitution."

Bathing Beach Romance Cracks Under Strain of Married Life

Mrs. Howard Allen Otte.

(By Central Press.)

Chicago, July 4.—A four-week "bathing beach romance" has just foundered on the shoals of the matrimonial sea.

It's that of Howard Allen Otte and his wife, formerly Miss Lollie May Cox, Evanston.

Lollie May had been attending boarding school. She returned to Evanston for her summer vacation a year ago. Naturally she visited the famed Evanston beach.

One, two or three times a week at first. Then oftener.

Howard Allen Otte also visited the beach occasionally. Then his trips to the bathing spot became daily affairs.

Conventions aren't adhered to quite Lollie and Howard became acquainted.

He taught her to swim, of course, and on the side taught her to love him also. For four weeks he wooed. Then he won. Convention would have engagements announced.

But they surprised their friends by suddenly making it known that they had been married.

It's all over now, though. The romance has ended in separation.

"I won't say a thing about a possible divorce, we are just waiting. The truth is that Howard and I discovered very quickly after our marriage that we had made a pitiful mistake. We were not suited to each other. I guess that about explains everything.

"I'm afraid I don't love him any more," Mrs. Otte explained.

FOUR INVESTIGATIONS INTO READING WRECK

Atlantic City, N. J., July 4.—Four investigations to fix responsibility for the wreck at Winslow Junction of the Reading railway "Midnight Flyer," in which six persons were killed and more than 65 injured, were under way today. Inquiries were made by railroad officials, county and state authorities and the interstate commerce commission.

It was planned to question John DeWalt, veteran towerman at Winslow Junction, if his physical condition permits, in an effort to learn why the switch to the Camp May cutover was left open, which is held by railroad officials to have caused the train to jump the track. The flyer took the switch at full speed and the locomotive was unable to hold the rail on the sharp curve.

DeWalt is under surveillance by the state police at his home in Hammonton. Since the accident he has been in a nervous state. Reports that DeWalt assumed responsibility for the wreck were denied by Reading officials.

Four of the injured at the Atlantic City hospital were in a critical condition and but little hope was held out for their recovery.

French President Cables to Harding On July Fourth

Paris, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—President Millerand today sent the following cable message to President Harding:

"The French people wish to associate themselves heartily with the American people in the celebration of Independence day. The common trials which our two nations have endured to insure the liberty of the world make dearer and dearer to us the anniversaries in which one of them commemorates the triumph of this noble cause. In the name of France, bound to the United States by lasting friendship, I send to you and to the great republic which you represent, my warmest wishes for your happiness and prosperity."

SEABOARD FREIGHT CARS ARE DERAILED

Six freight cars of a Seaboard train were derailed late Tuesday near Hamlin, Ga., according to an announcement by the company's offices here. No one was injured.

Officials asserted they 'had not learned the cause of the derailment, Passenger trains were delayed several hours.

The Danger of Bugaboos.

(From The July Designer.)

First, we know that self-preservation is the first law of life; therefore the fear instinct is in itself a normal one, being, as it is, deeply rooted in the impulse of self-preservation. This instinct is generally made subservient to the will by environment and education. But there are certain children who inherit an unstable nervous system; they are impressionable and oversuggestible. It is these children who under certain conditions of training and environment have the fear instinct overdeveloped.

It is then that fertile soil is formed wherein may grow various psychopathic troubles. Exciting the imagination of the young child in an unhealthy way—by ghost stories, harrowing fairy tales or by frightening him—is one of the most potent factors in the excessive development of the fear instinct. "Every ugly thing told to the child, every shock, every fright," says Angelo Mosso, "will remain like minute splinters in the flesh to torture him all his life long."

These and various other mental conflicts with which children, men and women struggle are usually characterized by those coming in contact with such a sufferer as just a "peculiar kink" in one's make-up. That they suffer keenly and are seriously handicapped for any career is seldom appreciated.

TRACKMEN STRIKE AGAIN POSTPONED

the persent wage decision of the labor board, under protest pending the efforts to obtain a satisfactory adjustment.

"Fourth—To insist that any revision of wages obtained made retroactive to July 1.

"Fifth—To seek immediately from the railroad labor board a ruling absolving our members from being required to perform the work of striking employees belonging to other classes.

Withhold Strike.

"Sixth—To withhold our strike order pending the carrying out of the foregoing program.

"With the best interests of the members of our organization at heart, it is our judgment that more will be gained for them by the program here outlined than could be derived from any other course.

"We believe that a just and generous public sentiment will sustain us in this policy, and every move necessary to its accomplishment will be most vigorously pressed.

"This announcement will be followed by a circular letter dealing with this matter more in detail."

Strength Test Today.

Both railroad executives and officers of the shopcrafts, now on strike, admitted tonight that the first real test of strength of the striking shopmen will occur tomorrow when the whistles blow.

B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, has contended that practically 100 per cent of his 400,000 members had obeyed the strike call. The carriers have asserted that many men who walked out last Saturday were merely going for a holiday over the Fourth of July and will be back on the job tomorrow.

Mr. Jewell today replied to the pronouncement of the labor board of yesterday, "outlawing" his organization by asserting that it was not the shopmen, but the board itself that had been "outlawed."

Mr. Jewell in his letter to the board, asserted that that body had failed in its attempt to negotiate a settlement between the shopmen and the carriers and reiterated his intention of dealing only with the railroads in making a settlement.

Harding Reference.

President Harding in an address at Marion, Ohio, today took cognizance of the labor situation when he declared that a man has a right to labor without any other's permission, and that men also have the right to bargain collectively. "Governments," he added, "cannot tolerate any class or grouped domination through force."

The fourth day of the shopmen's strike passed quietly.

Several of the railroads maintained that their shop forces were being augmented by the strikers themselves who were returning to work. These statements were denied by the union men.

Few Clashes.

Violation in connection with the strike was confined today to a few scattered clashes between strike sympathizers and workers, although a number of railroads established extra guards about their shops in a number of instances, and took other added precautions.

From Cleveland came a threat of a strike of trackmen on the Mahoning division of the Erie railroad following the discharge of an employee because, according to union officials, he refused to do work regularly delegated to men on strike.

The maintenance of way strike, averted today, was voted on the $60,000,000 wage cut authorized by the labor board for maintenance of way men effective July 1. Mr. Grable was summoned before the board last Friday and had promised not to call the strike until further conferences had been made.

NO STRIKE EFFECT SEEN IN SAVANNAH.

Savannah, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) The public could not have told a shopmen's strike was on from the operation of trains today in and out of Savannah, the Central of Georgia in addition to its regular lines, which showed trains on schedule, operated fifty-six trains on the Tybee line on schedule. Main line trains, passenger and freight on the Central, Coast Line and Seaboard were running on time.

The heavy excursion traffic beachward was a feature of the Fourth, it being estimated that five thousand took advantage of the July 1 to 4 special rates. Savannah was emptied today, the populace taking the day at the various resorts.

AIR HOSE CUT IN CHATTANOOGA.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 4—The strike of railroad shopmen began to assume an ugly phase here today, a large number of airhose on a train which had been made up to start for Cincinnati were cut and after being repaired were again severed after the engine had started and had to be halted.

Several carloads of men were brought in to take the places of the strikers in the yards today but remained only a few hours, the railroad officials stating that they had been intimidated. Attorneys for the Southern railway this afternoon asked Commissioner of Police E. D. Herron what protection could be expected and were informed that in case of riot the police would interfere but that the force was inadequate to guard the yards and private property of the road.

An attempt to wreck the coal elevator in the Southern yard today was frustrated and one person placed under arrest.

The Belt Line railroad has stopped functioning and industries are unable to secure service. Coal cars are piling up on the tracks and retail dealers are unable to get them switched to their yards.

High officials of the railroads are making efforts to keep trains moving by working in the shops and on the engines. W. F. Wheelock, superintendent of terminals of the Southern system, is in a local hospital in a serious condition, having been overcome while drawing the fire from a locomotive boiler.

Taft Is Honored By Dignitaries Of British Life

London, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Representatives of many of the powers of the state, church, bench and bar and commerce, forming a brilliant assemblage, participated with the United States in an impressive commemoration of Independence day in London on the occasion of the annual banquet of the American society tonight, at which Chief Justice Taft was the principal guest.

The American, French, Japanese, Italian, Belgian, German and Brazilian ministers, the ministers of Argentian and Chile, four members of the British cabinet, the Canadian high commissioner and a host of notable Europeans sat with the former president of the United States, paying joint honor to him and America's independence.

The archbishop of Canterbury, Viscount Morley, Sir Thomas Lipton, Lord Riddell and other admirers of America also attended. It was virtually Mr. Taft's last public appearance in England, and every American prominent in the social and business life of London gave him both a stirring greeting and a warm farewell. He leaves for home Saturday.

Speakers.

The speakers were the American ambassador, George Harvey; Chief Justice Taft, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Wilson Cross, chairman of the American society, and Archdeacon Cody, of Canada.

The British war minister, paying tribute to Mr. Taft, saying that England welcomed him as joyously as every Tommy had greeted every Doughboy in the trenches of France.

"If blood be the price of freedom, England and America," he said, "have paid it in full."

Ambassador Harvey said it was a great gratification to have at the banquet a representative of the German republic, whom he described as "an admirable and statesmanlike gentleman." He regretted that the great Russian people had not emerged sufficiently from their hallucinations and chaos to send a similar representative.

Teases Taft.

The ambassador twitted the chief justice on his activities in London, referring to him as "the only man possessing a midribian chuckle and flexible diaphragm which could not keep up with his brain."

Mr. Taft drew on his anecdotes for a reply to the ambassador. The chief justice reviewed the history and main features of the declaration of independence and the rights enjoyed by the American people under it.

"The fourth of July is a noteworthy date in our relations with Great Britain," he said, "because upon that date within recent years we have learned through the manifestations of friendship and willingness of Britain to join with us in celebrating that birthday that we are still in her family, and the retention of interest and affection on her part in our welfare makes for a solid and lasting friendship."

Chairman Cross paid tribute to the service of Frederick Van Duser, who 49 years ago helped to found the organization and who was now about to retire. The American society desired to recognize his splendid services in fostering good relations between the two countries and assisting Americans by presenting him with a silver trophy.

BLAINE WOULD FREE EX-SERVICE CONVICTS

Superior, Wis., July 4.—Governor J. J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, announced in an address here today that he would extend executive clemency to every man in Wisconsin prisons "who can trace his plight, directly or indirectly, to causes arising out of the service to his country.

"No partisan consideration, no attempts at intimidation by political conferences will drive me from that purpose," Governor Blaine said.

"Executive clemency has been granted to 25 ex-service men and denied to none," he contended.

"In these cases where I have granted a pardon I have found that all of these boys had a clean record.

Governor Blaine charged that the broken promises of the government, the stupidity of public officials who should have anticipated the present condition, and the selfishness of those who seek privileges from the government are responsible for the imprisonment of the large number of former service men who he says are in jail

"There was plenty of money in the public treasury to pay war contracts, he said, "plenty of money to pay pure graft, plenty of money to pay the swivel chair patriots, in fact there were millions for every purpose that smacked of graft or profiteering, and nothing for the soldier boy but prison walls and poverty or privation.

"When I can take these boys out of prison and put them in colleges then I will be satisfied," he said.

How about your vinegar?

Is your vinegar "just sour?" There should be more to it than that. There should be a real flavor, a fine aroma that awakens the latent tastes of vegetables and salads. Heinz Vinegars are like that.

HEINZ
PURE VINEGARS

This is the time when you must positively use care in selecting foods—when you must use care in selecting articles of food, to be sure that you get the real food values that help build up good health.

You must have the vital elements in foods if you want to keep well. These vital elements cause the food you eat to assimilate—it means health and growth in children—also in grown-ups. It means replacement of worn out tissue, the building of lost bodily vigor. In fact, it is absolutely necessary to life itself.

Many food authorities agree that pure baking powder and good plain flour are much better for food value and health than many self-rising flours.

For the best of health—for the most economical results—use only plain flour and good baking powder.

YOU, AS A GOOD HOUSEWIFE know that the time to add anything to flour is just before you begin your baking, not months before and you also know that no prepared mixtures such as the self-rising flour can be as fresh—can be as certain in results—as the good old fashioned straight flour and pure baking powder.

For best results use—
Calumet Baking Powder and a good plain flour.

PERSHING APPEALS FOR HONOR OF LAW

Marion, Ohio, July 4.—The spirit of patriotic Americanism that made "men and women by the millions" seek opportunity to serve the nation during the war was invoked by General Pershing today, speaking at Marion's centennial celebration, to combat the present "dangerous tendency toward disobedience to law."

"Moral standards have become materially weakened," he said, "and the criminal elements of society are less cautious in their activities. It is time for all citizens who cherish our heritage of free government to assert themselves and cry out against lawlessness and immorality. We must stand for prompt enforcement of the law, or concede that free government is a failure.

"Open adherence to the lonely ideals is quite as essential now in the post-war days as during wartime when impending danger inspired every one to unselfish devotion and service."

Relaxed Standards.

Speaking of the signs of relaxed standards, General Pershing said:

"Under the constitution every man is guaranteed the right to live, enjoy liberty and pursue happiness, but there are those who defy these guarantees and seek to deprive others of these sacred privileges.

"Where whole communities openly sympathize with ruthless murder of inoffensive people in the exercise of the right to earn a livilihood and where wholesale murder goes unpunished, it is imperative that public opinion should demand that the strong arm of the law, under fearless officials take positive action. Overt and inexcusable acts of this character not only debase the participant but lower the whole moral fabric of the nation and strike at the very existence of self-government."

General Pershing also dealt with the question of military preparedness and the merchant marine. Of the former he said:

Scores Pacifists.

"The voice of a blatant pacifist is again heard in the land. The unreasoning, the unthinking and those who will not learn from experience continue to advocate the theory that complete disarmament will prevent war. In the knowledge that our army is of the people, and in the face of the loss of life and the cost in money that we ourselves have recently withstood as a result of neglect of the most feeble preparation, they pronounce against any sort of military training or preliminary organization and would so reduce as to make expansion impossible within any reasonable period and possibly again compel the enormous expenditure of life and treasure under which the country is suffering today.

"I venture to say that few, if any, of those who would destroy our small army and navy in times of peace were found in the ranks with those brave and patriotic men who fought to destroy the armies of our enemies on the field of battle."

Of the need for an American merchant marine General Pershing said:

Helpless at Sea.

"It must be with deep chagrin that every American recalls the almost helpless feeling that came over us when at the beginning of the war we were confronted with the problem of saving the allies from destruction and had no ships in which to transport our armies. Only fortuitous circumstances prevented the last stroke by the enemy that would have made him the victor, and made it possible for the allies to hold on for the year necessary for us to build ships. Even then over half our armies were transported in foreign bottoms.

"Today we would be helpless as a sea power without any adequate merchant marine. Those who oppose the policy of giving aid to an American merchant marine are working against the best interests of their country, in which action they are without doubt strongly supported by the agents of every well developed maritime power. We have sea trade and we are becoming more and more dpendent upon it."

Price of Liberty.

In conclusion General Pershing said the nation "is sound of heart," but that individuals too often neglect to give serious thought to matters of grave national import.

"Let us openly fight against those evil tendencies, often insiduously supported by propaganda, which if neglected must eventually undermine and destroy us," he said. "As in the early days of the nation, eternal vigilance is ever the priceo f liberty."

A SABBATH CALM DURING FOURTH

a number of social and fraternal organizations nor with the athletic contests at Ponce de Leon and Lakewood parks. Moving picture shows also attracted large audiences with special programs.

Many See Flag Raising.

Several hundred persons gathered at Five Points at 7:30 o'clock in the morning to witness the flag raising exercises under the auspices of Roosevelt camp, United Spanish War Veterans. The flag, a regulation standard, was wafted to the morning breeze promptly at the scheduled hour by Ralph Steckell, of Fort McPherson, chairman of the committee.

Then came the parade by the American Legion in collaboration with the reserve officers' training corps detachment at Georgia Tech and other R. O. T. C. units. More than 50 trucks containing machine guns, trench mortars, radio field apparatus, repair trucks, heavy artillery and last but not least, a truck containing twenty members of the Atlanta chapter American Red Cross, formed at North avenue and proceeded south on Peachtree and Whitehall streets to Mitchell and thence to Broad to Luckie to the point of beginning.

Upon arriving at Grant field a military ceremonial including an Independence day salute by the artillery unit of 48 guns to the flag, was fired.

Trees Are Dedicated.

While all this was in progress impressive ceremonies at Piedmont park marked the unveiling by the Atlanta Writers' club of a memorial tablet to the late President William McKinley. Several trees were also dedicated to prominent Americans, including President Harding and the late William Dean Howells, of Ohio. Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, president of the Writers' club, delivered the introductory address at the beginning of the exercises.

The tablet, set in white granite from the Stone Mountain quarry, is of bronze and bears an appropriate inscription. It measures fifteen inches from the base and rests upon the granite block 18 by 24 inches. Miss Charlotte King, of Atlanta, and Miss Betty Seeds, of Ohio, unveiled the slab while the band of the Fitzhugh Lee camp, United Spanish War veterans, played "Nearer, My God, to Thee." A wreath was placed on the tablet by Mrs. Jay King, president of the Woman's Relief corps, auxiliary of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Glowing tributes from President Harding and Governor Harry L. Davis, of Ohio, were read by Mrs. Wylie. Both were invited to attend the exercises and expressed their regret at being unable to get away from their respective posts.

Mrs. John A. Perdue, representing the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of Confederacy, spoke feelingly of the late President McKinley. Other representatives were present from the John B. Gordon camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans; Roosevelt and Fitzhugh Lee camps, United Spanish War Veterans; the American Legion and Old Guard, and participated in the exercises. At the conclusion of the speaking a platoon of soldiers from Fort McPherson fired a military salute over the memorial.

Thousands Watch Races.

At Lakewood several thousand persons assembled in the afternoon to witness a racing program and track meet. The oratorical exercises, which included an address from Governor Hardwick, was postponed from 11 o'clock until 5 o'clock in the afternoon because of inclement weather.

Congressman William D. Upshaw, who arrived in Atlanta Tuesday morning to spend a few days during the congressional recess, was the principal speaker at Maddox park, in the afternoon, his subject being "The Fourth of July and Real Americans." He also spoke to a large audience of Pullman car conductors in the late afternoon at Lakewood. He will deliver one of his platform lectures at Western Heights Baptist church at 8 o'clock next Monday night.

Special exercises dedicating Washington park, the new fifteen-acre public recreation ground for negroes, located on Ashley street near the public school building, attracted several thousand persons. The park is equipped with a swimming pool and other attractions. It is the first city park that has been officially allotted to colored people of Atlanta by city council. The committee in charge consisted of Rev. R. H. Singleton, Rev. J. T. Ikleberger, Prof. John Hope, Rev. Russell Brown, C. W. Trent, Jesse O. Thomas, Rev. Stanton and Jackson McHenry.

"SEEING GEORGIA FIRST."

It is hoped that the Georgia general assembly as a unit will respond to the governor's invitation to witness the moving picture exhibition in the house of representatives tonight; not particularly because of the entertainment feature of a picture program, but because of the opportunity it will give the members to visualize some of the rugged grandeur of the north Georgia mountains, shown to such magnificent effect in the "movie" story of The Atlanta Constitution's recent official government tour of the national reserves.

"See America First" was a slogan employed some years ago to attract the attention of the millions of summer tourists of this country to the great mountain areas of the west, in which national parks had been planted and developed by the government.

As a result, more than six million people visit the national parks and forests—the government's own great out of doors—each season; thousands of them camping in these reserves for from one to four weeks each summer with only normal expense of daily maintenance.

In northeast Georgia the government owns in excess of 150,000 acres of among the most beautiful mountain forests in the United States. It has from two to three hundred thousand acres more in purchase areas, to fill out and square up the land blocks already bought.

These forest lands are being bought under the auspices of the national forestry commission by authority of the Weeks law—to conserve the timber supply and protect the headwaters of the mountain rivers that enter so potently into the manufacture of hydro-electric power, as well as to serve as watersheds for millions of acres of cultivated and cultivatable lands.

In these reserves are rugged peaks, broad plateaus, lakes, rivers, springs—and a healthful, high altitude ozone that is not surpassed for pleasure and rest and health in the United States.

It was The Constitution's purpose in organizing the recent official government expedition, to have the department of agriculture dedicate these reserves as a national playground, and to assist in building roads and trails through them, and approaching them, that would make them available to millions of people.

The expedition was a success even beyond the most sanguine hopes of this newspaper, and constructive results toward the desired ends are already in process of development.

It is some of the scenery, some of the incidents, some of the nerve-straining trails that were negotiated, and some of the almost impassable roads that were encountered by the expedition, that the legislators will see in this—one of the most interesting scenic films ever thrown upon a screen in Atlanta.

"Seeing Georgia first" should be the slogan of every member of the legislature—every Georgian, indeed—and this picture will afford an opportunity that scores of the members, certainly those from the coastal plains, have not had before.

We doubt if there is more joy in heaven when a sinner repents than there is right here when a good man falls from grace.

The great American amateur appears to have discarded home brewing for the radio.

The season matters little. Emptying the drip pan under the refrigerator is about as troublesome as emptying the ashes.

THE TIME TO FIGHT.

News dispatches from the delta laboratory of the United States bureau of entomology, at Tallulah, La., indicate a far greater boll weevil infestation than usual at this season of the year.

A general survey of the entire cotton belt shows that no one section is immune, and that the excess emergence from hibernation is general throughout the southern states.

This means that cotton farmers generally must fight that much harder, consistently and systematically, in order to control the pest, but it does not necessarily mean that any farmer, at this particular moment, need be discouraged in the belief that he is going to lose all the labor and expense of bringing his cotton plants to the present stage. The next thirty days is the crucial period in weevil control, and however heavy may be the infestation at this time, a fair crop can yet be made if the farmer will take the matter vigorously in hand, use calcium arsenate correctly and liberally, pick the punctured and fallen squares, and lightly cultivate rapidly and incessantly, from this time until the picking season begins.

There is no real advantage in using the arsenate before the squares form, but it is necessary to make liberal applications as quickly as the cotton begins to square freely, and then to keep it up with a system through the remainder of the maturing season. The weevil is never whipped until the cotton is made, and there can be no "laying by," as in the old pre-weevil days, until the inroads of the insect can do no further harm.

Constitution readers will recall that last spring James A. Hollomon, staff correspondent, visited various sections of the southeastern cotton belt, where progressive planters have long since learned to control the weevil, and made a careful and painstaking study of how to grow cotton under boll weevil conditions. His articles on that subject created national attention, and hundreds of thousands of the complete series in book were distributed by banks, state agricultural departments, and other business institutions throughout the south.

Mr. Hollomon's conclusions, in brief, were as follows—

Prepare the seed bed well; plant pedigreed early varieties; reduce acreage to five or six acres to the plow; plant cotton only on segregated, well-drained lands; fertilize liberally; intensely cultivate—and use calcium arsenate as quickly as the squares begin to form, and to keep up its use from that time on, carrying this process along with rapid, shallow cultivation.

He also advocated picking and burning punctured and withered and fallen squares—and after the maturity of the crop, before the winter, the plowing up of the stalks.

Reports throughout the south indicate that thousands of cotton farmers are adopting that formula this year, and despite the greatly excessive emergence of the insect from the winter quarters, there are going to be fair crops made by every farmer who has industriously and intelligently followed the plan that experience has taught is the most satisfactory method of controlling the weevil pest.

On the plantations of Representative Cowart, near Arlington, in southwest Georgia, a demonstration and survey last week showed that on the 800 acres planted to cotton the plants have sufficiently advanced in bolling to a stage beyond weevil danger that a conservative estimate places the production at not less than 600 bales gross, and this despite the long rainy season shortly after planting, that did much damage, retarded growth, and otherwise impaired production prospects, irrespective of the weevil.

Mr. Cowart employed the method of weevil control advocated by Mr. Hollomon's studies in the southeast.

Similar reports are coming from all sections of the cotton belt.

Cotton acreage on the whole has not been increased. The urgent demand for intense cultivation has taught the farmer who has heeded advice to hold the acreage down to each plow—and to plant the surplus in feed and food—so much so that those who have done so will get greater net yields per acre under weevil conditions than heretofore, and yet will have other products for home and market consumption.

Let there be no let-up in the fight on the weevil.

Because infestation is heavy, perhaps heavier than usual, is only an incentive for a greater determination to make a crop in spite of the weevil.

And the work of the next thirty days will determine the net result of the individual farmer's fighting spirit.

All efforts to save civilization seem worth while until you watch the antics of some youngster who has inherited a million or two.

The funny part of it is that the man who is too practical to believe in the saving power of faith will take a stranger's check.

ARROWS.

That which we send out is what tells other people of our sort and kind.

I like to think of deeds as arrows—sent out on journeys. And your thoughts may all be arrows that will travel around the world and into thousands of hearts.

You may not know where the arrow came from that has helped you or cheered you, but you will have gained an inspiration for personal service that will make it possible for you to send out arrows, too.

The teacher in the classroom little realizes the arrows he is dropping in the lives under his instruction.

I have in mind a teacher who taught character and kindness and the high courage of living very much better than he did mathematics. I soon forgot his mathematics, but his words of occasionally dropped wisdom lodged within me and have stayed there throughout the years.

We never know when we are sending out an arrow—and many times we are not aware that the arrow sent may wound instead of inspire and help.

I think that our arrows should be sent out with a prayer that they may lodge "in the heart of a friend," or prospective friend.

Perhaps some will go far to some hospital where there is much pain and patience—and there take out its journey's end in soothing the pain and lifting the curtains of an otherwise sad and lonely heart.

Happiness is something to be learned quite as much as other things that add to the glory of living.

And we may learn happiness by sending it out to others. That is the surest way to get it.

Use your arrows! Float them through every air. Send them throughout the world.

Many of these arrows are sure to come back—with appreciation and thankfulness attached to their tips.

What a responsibility we have in handling our influence!

BIG CROWD ATTENDS FITZGERALD JUBILEE

Fitzgerald, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—Although Fitzgerald has been accustomed to entertain large crowds at Independence day celebrations, it was not expecting to break all previous records this year, especially since conditions were apparently less favorable for jollifications. But that is what it came close to accomplishing today.

Wagons, buggies, trucks and Ford loads of poultry stopped traffic for several hours in the center of the city, where the co-operative poultry sale was conducted by County Agent C. T. Owen and Special Agent J. T. Pittman, of the State College of Agriculture. Poultry fanciers had decidedly fine exhibits.

J. E. Turner, for the city, gave an address of welcome. Col. Carlisle McDonald read the Declaration of Independence and Col. Sam Kassewitz, delivered a patriotic address. Patriotic songs were sung by the audience lead by Burr Stokoe and a select choir from the various churches of the city. A basket dinner at noon in the Blue and Gray park, water fight, races, and a swimming contest in Sans Souci park and baseball games also were features.

The committee in charge of the program were C. T. Owen, J. T. Pittman, G. S. Willcox and I. Gelders.

The Old Germany and the New

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS

Washington, July 4.—No complicated or expert interpretation is required to explain the assasination of Rathenau. Like the killing of Erzberger and of Eisner, it represents the expression of the power of veto the old Germany exercises over what we are pleased to call the new. Eisner represented a policy of recognition of guilt, Erzberger typified the surrender, Rathenau advocated the policy of fulfillment. Therefore all were killed.

It does not lie within the power or the pleasure (one may have either explanation) of the older order to take control at the moment. The Kapp Putsch would tend to suggest that it is not now possible. The militarists, the men who made the war, who supplied the abhorrent and at the same time ridiculous incidents of the period before the war and during it, the victims of the delusions of grandeur, who made a world suffer for their madness, cannot today resume control of Germany, but they can prevent an evolution of Germany toward something new.

It is convenient and it is accepted as an evidence of a forgiving spirit, to assume that Germany has laid aside the old and taken to the new, that the only thing necessary to complete the process of recuperation is the reception of Germany fully and freely in international affairs. Those who still remember the war, which was something, and the period before the war which was much more illustrative, are constantly held up to scorn as champions of war and of militarism.

Rathenau's Theories.

Fortunately or unfortunately for the arguments of those who would have us discard caution and abolish memory, it is the German, himself, who from time to time furnishes the best evidence against himself. He did it during the war again and again; he is doing it now when pro-German propaganda is quite as general.

Rathenau recognized that Germany had lost the war and that Germany, to escape ruin, would have to make payment. He did not deal with the ethical or inethical detail of reparations, he faced the political fact, he saw that in the end, if payment were not made, France would act and no other nation, no matter what its personal interest, was in a position to intervene. He saw that in an effort to pay, honestly made, there was the single German action which might enlist effective support abroad. He saw, too, that the one sane way to pay was by means of some arrangement like the Wiesbaden agreement, that is, by payment in goods and in labor.

More than that, Rathenau was one of the few Germans who saw that co-operation with France, not a war of revenge, offered the single sane hope of saving commercial and industrial Germany. French iron and German coal were a logical basis for such a co-operation. Co-operation of this economic sort might one day make it a matter of interest to France to change her attitude in the matter of reparations. Short of that he saw no hope.

But the old Germany was not interested in rapprochement with France and economic co-operation. This meant peace, it meant an acceptance of the things which are. Much better for this old gang to foment hatred, to preach the gospel of revenge, to murder French and Belgian soldiers in a cowardly fashion when opportunity arose, above all to keep alive the hatred of France and the desire for vengeance. Such a policy would demand an army, it would call for the old form of government; in a word, it would supply a reason for their existence.

This, after all, has been the tactics of the old order. Strong men like Eisner, Erezberger, Rathenau, Scheidmann, who was shot at the other day, men who accepted the present regime, not because they liked it, but because they saw no other solution, men, in a word, who might make the present regime possible, the German republic an enduring fact, these men are to be removed by murder; then, one day, when strong men have been eliminated, the old gang will come back to "save Germany."

Old Gang's Propaganda.

For three years this gang has preached hate against France, fixed the responsibility for defeat not upon themselves, their leaders, Moltke, Falkenhayn and Ludendorff, who lost the war upon the battlefield, declined to endure further agony and rose in revolt against those who had lost the struggle.

The key of the whole situation, in a sense, lies in the peculiar political character of the Germans, themselves. They have no capacity for independence they seem destined to be led, not to direct their own fortunes. They are used to having their thinking done for them and have been accustomed to take the results as they were delivered. By comparison with the masses of America, Great Britain, France, they are still in a remote century, politically speaking.

The rulers of the moment, Ebert and Wirth, are products of the system. They dare not take the real steps necessary to abolish the reign of terror which exists and has existed. The assassin of Erzberger escapes, the murderer of Eisner, the killers of Rathenau, they, too, will be able to evade justice, because those who control justice are afraid of those whom crime represents.

The killing of Rathenau removes one more of the relatively few men who might have saved Germany from the fate toward which she is ineluctably marching. It places one more argument in the hands of those neighbors of Germany, who maintain that only by keeping their armies strong can they insure their own safety. It gives the lie to all the arguments of those who see a new Germany rising.

It is nearly four years since the armistice and more than three since the signing of the treaty of Versailles, yet today we know almost as little of Germany as we did on either occasion, and the little that we know is mainly disclosed by just such episodes as the slaughter of Rathenau. In him Germany has lost a great man, and the world one of the few Germans with whom it could yet talk in terms of reason.

DR. J. C. ASBURY BURIED IN GREENSBORO

Greensboro, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) The funeral of Dr. J. C. Asbury, 57, was held at the city cemetery this afternoon. Dr. Asbury was one of the most prominent physicians of Greensboro. His death occurred at the home of his sister, Mrs. H. T. Evans, Monday afternoon.

THOMASVILLE MELON SEASON CLOSES

Thomasville, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—According to those in close touch with the watermelon crop, this week will about close up the shipping season of 1922 for southwest Georgia.

While the season, as a whole, has been disappointing to the growers, and none of the expected big prices developed, there are some who have ralized fair profits. The effect of this season, it is stated, will be to increase the membership of the Southwest Georgia Melon association, as the melons of the association have found ready sales.

June ended up with the report of 5,127 carlot shipments for this season as against 4,873 for last year for Georgia melons, and 10,063 carlot shipments for this season as against 5,221 of Florida melons for last year.

The Pelham market for cantaloupes is reported closed with no market reports and the shipments from the Meigs territory are in the same class. It is said that the hogs are now enjoying the cantaloupes that the growers expected to bring in large returns on the market.

WAYCROSS CURB MART IS BECOMING FAMOUS

Waycross, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) Numerous inquiries are being received by the chamber of commerce from many Georgia towns and cities asking for information regarding the operation of the Waycross curb market.

Recently a committee from the Quitman board of trade visited the market. A telegram was received yesterday from Secretary W. R. Cities, of the Millen board of trade, asking for complete information on the Waycross market.

BOWDEN ANNOUNCES TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

Waycross, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) Representative J. E. T. Bowden will be a candidate to succeed himself in the next legislature. He now is in Atlanta attending the general assembly.

It has been generally understood that Representative Bowden would not be a candidate for re-election, and his announcement came as a surprise. He has served for many years, and is one of the best known legislators in the state.

BARBECUE TODAY AT SOLDIERS' HOME

A barbecue will be held at the Confederate Soldiers' home, from 11 to 2 o'clock today, when addresses by Congressman W. D. Upshaw, D. T. Lawrence, Miss Mildred Rutherford and others will be features of the occasion. Ninety-seven heroes of the confederacy are now residing at the home.

GOVERNOR OF OHIO REFUSES RETURN OF NEGRO FUGITIVE

Rome, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—Declaring that if returned to Georgia Henry Maxwell, alleged slayer of George Hubbard, timekeeper at a local manufacturing plant in 1917, would be lynched, the negro attorney at Columbus, Ohio, representing Maxwell, finally induced Governor Davis of that state to refuse an order of extradition after Judge Levin, of the county court at Cleveland, where the negro was arrested, had decided that identification of him was sufficient, according to a statement made here today by Sheriff Wilson, who has just returned without the fugitive.

Ed Woods, foreman at the plant when the killing occurred, and Bailiff Wilkins, who was very well acquainted with Maxwell, went to Cleveland with the sheriff and identified the negro.

Commissioner Haynes Increases Enforcement Officers in This State

Authorization for the employment of two additional men for federal prohibition forces in Georgia was given Fred D. Dismuke director, who returned from Washington Monday after conference with R. A. Haynes, federal prohibition commissioner. He now has 30 on his force.

The director denied having made any statement that the conditions in Georgia are getting out of control. On the contrary, he said, the situation is improving and the addition of the two men comes as recognition of excellent work being done by his department.

"There have been more cases and more arrests in Atlanta than ever before," he declared. "There is less bootlegging and distilling in Georgia than there has been in several years. Decidedly, the situation is not out of control."

EDGAR DUNLAP CHIEF SPEAKER AT ATHENS

Athens, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—The members of the Allen R. Fleming post of the American Legion sponsored the Athens celebration of July 4 today and a program replete with interesting events was carried out.

The day opened with the first showing of the war pictures, "flashes of action," at the Palace theater and at noon the speaking program on Sanford Field held sway, while the athletic events, boxing bouts, marked the afternoon program, beginning at 2:30 with the baseball game between Elberton and Buford.

Edgar Dunlap, of Gainesville, was the principal speaker. Mayor George C. Thomas, Dr. Joseph Stewart and Frank Holden also spoke.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

IS IODINE A REMEDY FOR GOITRE.

Two thousand years ago the Greek physicians prescribed sponge charcoal with some success in the treatment of goitre. In other words, an iodine treatment had been used empirically long before the relation of iodine in food with the function of the thyroid gland was known.

Regions where goitre is endemic are usually free from exophthalmic type of goitre, in which iodine does harm. In these goitre regions, for instance in parts of Switzerland, and on certain of the Great Lakes regions in America, the people seldom eat sea food. Sea food contains iodine in a readily assimilated form; the iodine of commerce is obtained from sea weed.

Sea fish is good for people who have simple goitre. It is perhaps harmful for people who have exophthalmic goitre. It is neither good nor bad for people who have cystic goitre.

Just why iodine metabolism is defective in certain young women in goitre regions, we do not know. Nor in fact, do we know that the benefit obtained from sea food is wholly due to its content of iodine. It may possibly be that sea food, used in place of meat, simply improves digestion by diminishing the intestinal putrefaction and autointoxication which some authorities assign as the underlying cause of the simple goitre. Thorough intestinal antisepsis seems to bring about recovery in a fair share of the cases of simple goitre.

Prolongued rest in bed in the open air, precisely as for pulmonary tuberculosis, is still the most effective treatment for Basedow's disease—exophthalmic goitre. Surgery remains the second choice, when the open air rest cure fails. There is one feature of the operation for goitre which has not been sufficiently emphasized, namely, that while operation is usually safer than procrastination when the patient's condition is changing from bad to worse, it cannot and does not cure. Operation merely places the patient in the way of obtaining ultimate cure through prolonged rest in bed in the open air. Surgery is frequently a necessity, a life-saving resort in bad cases of exophthalmic goitre, but not a treatment to be sought without first having employed the open air rest cure for a reasonable length of time.

For the large, long standing cystic goitre, nothing else than surgery offers much chance of complete cure. For the simple goitre surgery should be rarely, if ever, employed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Pain in the Back.

Kindly suggest a good kidney remedy I suffer considerably with dull pain in the small of the back.—F. L.

Answer—If you assume that pain in the small of the back is a symptom of kidney trouble you are sadly misinformed. Pain in that situation is very rarely felt by persons who really have kidney trouble. Pain in the back, like pain in the head, is most frequently reflex in origin, and in order to obtain relief you should undergo a thorough examination by a physician. It would be unwarranted extravagance on your part to experiment blindly with such a symptom.

A Cruel Mistake.

A niece of mine, 14 years of age, and a cousin about 17, are both afflicted with hideous eruptions of pimples and blackheads much of the time. The boy is a harem scarem sort, but the girl is quiet and retiring. Is such trouble a sign of some sexual disturbance?—S. H. M.

Answer—No. That is one of the old fish-wife superstitions, and a very cruel one. Blackheads and pimples occur in boys and girls from 12 to 20 very commonly, so very commonly that it is practically physiological. As a matter of fact persons with sexual disturbances or actual veneral diseases, seldom or never show any signs on the face. So you see how wicked the delusion really is.

Killing Flies in the House.

Can you suggest any agent which will poison flies in the house without being dangerous to children or pets?—Mrs. D. C. T.

Answer—Careful tests and experiments carried out by experts in the United States public health service at Washington proved that a solution of salicylate of soda in water (1 per cent—approximately five grains to an ounce) sweetened with sugar and allowed to stand in an open vessel where the flies can eat it, is safe and superior to most poisonous fly killers.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, July 4.—Manhattan has its midinettes the same as Paris. The irruption takes place around the luncheon hour when they sweep out of the towering office buildings into lower Broadway, Wall and Nassau streets. They are symbols of youth and audacity.

The Paris midinette is somewhat the gamin carrying bandboxes and packages. But in New York she is an office worker who is simply stenogging as a step upward—perhaps toward the footlights or an avenue mansion.

She wears the smartest frocks and hats and her vanity box is used every few blocks. She does not, as does her prim sister, swirl into St. Paul and Trinity churchyard to eat box luncheons on the graves of the immortals.

Instead she meets the natty young man and dangles on his arm while he escorts her to any one of the better class cafes in the business district. Commercial affairs are sketchy incidents in her life. As a career, business is a dud.

She may toil over a typewriter or stenographic notes morning and afternoon, but at midday she b looms a radiant, alluring creature who, on upper Broadway, is called a vamp. Many of the luncheon hour courtiers of Fifth avenue now subway to lower Broadway palpitating with the hope of new conquests.

Sedate black dresses are not for the Gotham midinette. She does not even attempt to hide the cigarette case hanging from her wrist chain. An office manager tells of discharging one of these airy, fairy creatures. He expected tears. Instead she laughed in his face. Then she called up a number and asked to have her car sent at once. An imported limousine came. It was the boss' car.

There is a chain of restaurants owned by three New Yorkers. The first is the financial backer, the second attends to the cuisine and the third is a newspaperman with a decorative gift. He was called in when all the places were losing money. One by one he made them huge successes. But whenever they decide to open a new restaurant the newspaperman will have nothing to do with it and it never succeeds. "I always want one failure in the chain," he said, "just to remind my partners that they cannot make money without me."

The Sir Galahad of the taxi has arrived. The East Side thug, with a criminal record, is passing on to other fields of endeavor. A new taxicab company recently began business with the slogan, "Our driver is your escort." They had only 20 taxicabs but the drivers were men of polish and the demands for their cabs were so big that they have been expanding at the rate of 20 taxicabs a week. So many brutal crimes took place in taxicabs with the drivers acting as confederates that not only men but women began to fear them. Almost any night the police found some battered fare in the lonely drives of one of the city parks, beaten and robbed by the driver. One taxi company went over its list of operations and found that 12 per cent had prison records. It dismissed them at once. Another company announces that it will soon have in operation a group of taxicabs that will be operated by chauffeurs who will refuse to accept tips. That means the millennium is just around the corner.

BRILLIANT RADIO CONCERT PLANNED

Riely Eakin, Enrico Leide, Standring and Miss Bartholomew on Program Tomorrow.

There is a distinct surprise in store for radio listeners tomorrow evening when they tune at 6 o'clock for the program from The Atlanta Constitution. Owing to the circumstances in connection with the regular engagements of the artists, the concert was set for 6 o'clock instead of 9, when virtually all of the musical programs from The Constitution are given.

An imposing quartet of artists will be presented in the concert at 6 tomorrow evening. There will be Riely Eakin, dramatic soprano, who last week charmed audiences at the Howard theater with her role in the prologue; Enrico Leide, director of the Howard theater; Tom Standring, first violinist at the Howard, and Miss Marguerite Bartholomew, accompanist of note.

Last week people tuned for WDAW were given their first taste of Mrs. Eakin's singing by radio. She sang "By the Waters of Minnetonka," which she was presenting then at the Howard theater. She was assisted in this by the Howard quartet and was accompanied by Miss Bartholomew on the piano.

The one appearance of this comparatively new soprano was enough to give radio enthusiasts the promise of several delightful voice numbers for tomorrow evening.

Mr. Leide will make his radio debut Thursday evening. While he will direct all of the music for the program, he will also present one 'cello solo and will play a 'cello obligato for Riely Eakin in one of her numbers.

Mr. Standring, who is presented this week in a solo part at het Howard theater, needs little introduction to the people of Atlanta, and as the tones of his violin carry far into the ether, radio programs with his name will be received with delight by listeners in other states.

Miss Bartholomew is accomplished as a piano accompanist.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS!

Radio Editor: What is the wave length of my set? The loose coupler is wound with 225 turns of No. 24 enameled wire, coil is 3 3-4 inches diameter. Secondary is wound with 250 turns of No. 30 silk covered. Also have one 23 plate condenser, fixed condenser, crystal detector and 'phones. Aerial is 60 feet long, 3 wire. Lead-in is 20 feet. What is the advantage of using a 43 plate condenser instead of a 23 plate? Does it help to get selectivity in a greater degree than the 23 plate?
I. F.

Your wave length is about 1,500 meters. A 43 plate condenser will allow a greater range of wave lengths, but will not allow greater selectivity.

Radio Editor: Would you please let me know who the following stations are as to location and name and address of operator? The stations are as follows: 3XW, 2EAM, WFI, 2AOM.
C. P.

3XW, Horace A. Beale, Parkersburg, W. Va.; 2EAM, there is no such station on record, as yet. Possibly you confused the letters WFI, Strawbridge & Clothier, Philadelphia, Pa.; 2AOM, William A. Norton, 45 Alto avenue, Port Chester, N. Y.

LESSON No. 86.

Radio Dictionary.

Wave Meter—An instrument using inductance and capacity as a means of measuring the length of the wave emitted by a transmitter or the length of the wave to which a receiving set is tuned.

Loading Coil—An inductance coil provided with a means of varying the number of turns, thereby increasing or decreasing the amount of inductance. Loading coils are used for the purpose of adjusting either the primary or secondary circuits, or both, to longer wave lengths.

Audio-Frequency Oscillations—Arbitrarily defined as oscillations which vibrate at a rate below 10,000 cycles per second as distinguished from those of Radio-frequency which vibrate at a rate in excess of 10,000 cycles per second.

Radio Telephony—Voice modulated, continuous wave. The continuous wave is modulated or controlled by having superimposed upon it the wave of the voice.

Aerial Insulator—A non-conductor, inserted at the ends of the aerial wires to prevent any electrical connection between the wires and the supports.

Electrons—Small charges of negative electricty such as are given off in a vacuum tube by the filament when heated.

Filament—One of the three elements of a vacuum tube. A fine metallic wire usually of tungsten. When heated by a battery of low voltage it gives off electrons or small charges of negative electricity.

Diaphragm—A thin metallic or mica disc used in telephone receivers and microphones. When used in a microphone and vibrated by sound waves it controls the electric current in the microphone circuit. When used in a telephone receiver it converts the pulsation of the electric current, flowing in the receiver, into audible sounds.

Vario-Coupler—An inductively coupled tuning coil consisting of a stationary primary coil, the inductance of which may be varied by taps taken off at various portions of the winding and a secondary coil so arranged mechanically as to be rotated within the primary coil.

Microfarad—One millionth part of a Farad. Adopted as the practical unit for measurement of condenser capacity in radio circuits, due to the fact that the Farad has too large a value for this purpose.

End Turn Switch—A rotating switch used in connection with tuning coils for the purpose of dividing the tuning coils into groups and eliminating losses by disconnectng turns which are not in use.

Rheostat—A variable resistance used for controlling the amount of current in electric circuits. When connected in the filament circuit of the vacuum tube, it limits the strength of the current flowing through the filament and properly regulated, prevents "burning out" of the delicate wire.

WANT ADMINISTRATOR FOR CROKER ESTATE

New York, July 4.—Richard Croker has applied to Surrogate Cohalan to appoint a suitable person or trust company as administrator of the estate of his father, Richard Croker, the former Tammany chieftain, who died several weeks ago in Ireland. Since no will has been filed here, Cohalan said, he thought it to the best interests of the estate that an administrator be appointed immediately. The surrogate issued citations returnable September 19.

The application is a step in Croker's fight to prevent his father's entire estate from going to Mrs. Bula E. Croker, the father's second wife.

Guilty of Treason.

Berlin, July 4.—Baron Leo Prechting yesterday was found guilty of high treason and sentenced to life imprisonment in Munich on the charge that he had been in constant communication with French Minister Dard in Munich, and was striving for separation of south Germany from north Germany by French occupation troops. The proposed dividing line, according to the charge was to follow the river Main.

PROGRAM IS GIVEN BY MISS RAMSEY

Pianist Furnishes Seven Numbers to Delight of Large Audience of Radio Listeners.

Radio listeners again last evening were given a piano program by Miss Ruth Ramsey, who has appeared both as a singer and a pianist before for WDAW, while broadcasting for The Constitution. The program began at 9 o'clock last evening and lasted about forty minutes.

Miss Ramsey, who has studied under a number of teachers of voice and piano, has a delightful soprano voice with which she will entertain radio listeners at an early date through The Constitution. Her piano work is certainly as good as her vocal numbers.

In all of her selections last night Miss Ramsey used the Wellington piano furnished by the Cable Piano company.

Opening her program, Miss Ramsey played Schubert's "Scherzo in B Flat." This is a quick number and went well as the opening selection.

An entirely different kind of composition was the second number. For this Miss Ramsey played "Fifth Nocturne," by Laybach.

In the third and fourth numbers the same combination as that in the first and second selections was found. The third number was "Will o' the Wisp," by Jungman, while the fourth selection was "To Spring," by Grieg.

"Youth and Beauty Waltzes," Marzian, was the fifth selection.

For the sixth selection Miss Ramsey presented "Narcissus," by Nevin.

Concluding the program Miss Ramsey played "The Star Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key, in observance of Independence day.

FOUR MUSICIANS ON RADIO PROGRAM

Helton Brothers, Miss Lowrey and Griffith to Give Concert Tonight for The Constitution.

A program combining grand opera, ballads and popular music has been aranged for the 9 o'clock broadcast tonight by The Atlanta Constitution. At this time The Constitution will present Erle A. Helton, Wendell Helton, Miss Ida Mae Lowrey and W. B. Griffith. All of these musicians have become popular in Atlanta both through personal appearances and radio programs.

Erle A. Helton is known particularly well by The Constitution's radio audience, for several times he has given piano and French horn numbers, and has been received by thousands with faverable comment. Mr Helton was one of the musicians on the program with which The Constitution instituted its Sunday afternoon organ recital service to Piedmont park.

Wendell J Helton is well known as a saxophone player and cornetist. Tonight will be the first radio program on which both of the Helton brothers have appeared.

Mr. Griffith, who heads the Griffith Mandolin club, is particulalry well known for his banjo music, which always goes out well by radio.

In Miss Lowery the others on the program have a pianist and accompanist who is especially talented.

The program at 9 o'clock this evening will be as follows:

1. Piano solo "Battle of the Nations," played by Erle A. Helton.
2. Horn and cornet solo, "Then You'll Remember Me," played by the Helton brothers, with piano acompanist by Miss Lowrey

STEAMERS COLLIDE OFF SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, July 4.—The Japanese steamer Ginyo Maru and the steamship William McKinney collided early today in a fog off the Montara lighthouse, 16 miles south of the Golden Gate, according to a wireless message received here and relayed to the marine department of the chamber of commerce. The message was sent by the Ginyo Maru. Neither vessel was believed seriously damaged.

The Japanese ship en route from Atlantic ports to Japan, reported that she was making port under her own steam with a broken bow as the result of the smash.

The William A. McKinney, bound from San Francisco for New York, backed off from the crash with a badly dented hull, but was proceeding south unaided, wireless reports said. She will put into San Diego for repairs.

TACNA-ARICA ROW NET YET SETTLED

Washington, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Another response from the Lima foreign office was received today by the Peruvian delegation here, but it apparently was not interpreted as either a complete acceptance or a complete rejection of the Tacna-Arica compromise proposed by the United States and accepted nearly two weeks ago by Chile.

Although the American suggestion was said to have found final approval in the Peruvian capital, officials there are understood to have proposed a reservation which it was agreed generally might greatly complicate the negotiations.

The exact nature of the reservation was not revealed, but it was understood to relate to the third clause of the American formulae, dealing with the course to be adopted in case no plebescite is held in Tacna-Arica. The Chilean delegates have indicated they were not disposed to accept any material modification of this clause, and the more pessimistic in conference circles predicted that anoher deadlock might develop before the end of the week.

In Peruvian quarters, on the other hand, today's note from Lima was accepted as a favorable development.

Body of Woman Shown On Photograph Taken Over Two Months Ago

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—On developing a film negative taken over two months ago in Topanga Canyon, 25 miles northwest of here, B. W. Anderson found that the body of a woman lying under a tree among the undergrowth was clearly outlined in the photograph, according to his story to the police here late last night. The face of the body was intact, but the breast was badly mutilated. The photograph showed a black streak running from the mouth along the woman's face. When on the trip neither Anderson nor his friends saw the body, they told the police.

Anderson, in his story to the police said he and his two friends were hiking in a canyon when Anderson stopped and took several snapshots of his friends.

The pictures showed the body of a woman, partially clad, lying beneath a mesquit bush in one corner of the film. The face was that of a pretty woman.

Anderson went to the University police station and told his story. Six policemen and Anderson rushed to the canyon in an unsuccessful effort to locate the body. They abandoned the search until today.

THREE ARE DEAD WHEN ENGINE HITS NEWSPAPER TRUCKS

Asbury, N. J., July 4.—A northbound engine on the Pennsylvania railroad, running light, ploughed through three newspaper automobile trucks at the main depot today, killing three men and seriously injuring four others.

The trucks were backed up across a supposedly clear track to a southbound newspaper train on the Central railroad of New Jersey, and the men were busily engaged in loading newspapers when the engine tore down the track and smashed the trucks to pieces. George Siebert of Ocean Grove, N. J., and Harrison, and John Heckle, of this city, were killed.

The engine was in charge of Engineer Paul Alex, Jr., Philadelphia, and Fireman George Kruse, of Jersey City. They were arrested, charged with manslaughter.

FORMER JUDGE IS FOUND GUILTY OF WIFE MURDER

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 4.—Omer R. Woods, a former probate judge in Idaho, today was found guilty by a jury of the murder of his wife, Mary Etta Woods, who was burned to death as she lay in bed in the Woods apartment here last January 9. It was the contention of the prosecution at the trial that Woods killed his wife to collect $16,000 life insurance.

The jury verdict was murder in the first degree, and as there is but one penalty for that offense imposed in Utah—that of death—Woods, on July 11, wil be asked to state by which method he shall die. In case he makes no decision the court decides upon either hanging or shooting, the two execution methods of the state.

Testimony at the trial of Woods of a most startling nature was introduced. Evidence brought out that the dead woman's hands and feet had been tied and her body thrown upon the oil-soaked bed.

Woods' defense was that his wife had been murdered by two burglars who ransacked the apartment.

Disregard for Law Is Greatest Menace, Declares Lenroot

Ocean Grove, N. J., July 4.—Disregard for the law is "the greatest problem that America now faces, constituting a menace, which if unchecked, spells anarchy and ruin," declared United States Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin, in an address made today at Ocean Grove Independence day celebration.

Senator Lenroot urged observance of the Volstead law and deplored the tendency of the people to split into groups. Declaring his belief in the rights of labor to organize, he said:

"The shocking occurrences recently in the coal strike region in Illinois should arouse us to action. To quit work is a right but labor must understand that the right to work is just as sacred. Neither tyranny of capital nor tyranny of labor will be tolerated in America."

Senator Frelinghuysen, New Jersey, presided at the celebration and made a patriotic address.

The professor was putting the finishing touches on the sidewalk he was laying down. Tommy, aged six, had been watching the proceedings with great interest, and at length deeming the time right for trial, started to cross before the mixture had time to dry.

When the professor displayed some slight pique, a passer-by observed:

"Why, professor, I thought you liked children."

"I like 'em all right in the abstract," the professor replied, "but not in the concrete."—From Judge.

Effect of Movies.

(From The Scientific American.)

The child's reaction to the movies was recently tested in Chicago, and some unexpected results were obtained. The 5,000 children were blase toward elephants; bison thundering over the prairie met with a heartier reception; but it remained for the skunk, above all other animals, to excite their enthusiasm. The picture of a boy stealing apples and wading in shallow creeks put many of the children to sleep.

Gillis—No; I fooled her. I stood in the hall an hour, delivered a lecture on "Civic Righteousness," told a bedtime story, and sang three grand opera selections, and she thought she had forgotten to turn off the radio.—From Judge.

WOMEN ORGANIZE FOR LEGAL RIGHTS

the meeting of this legislature the women of Georgia may have an equality bill as consistently fair as that now existing in Wisconsin."

Assisting Miss Egan in organizing the campaign in Georgia is Mrs Gracie Butler, of Savannah, who is chairman of the state branch of the woman's party and, according to Mrs. Butler, they are not gaining the support of women only but men as well, since men are going out of their way to help put over this campaign. The majority of them claim that it is a matter of political expediency that women be accorded equality.

"This," she asserted, "is a radical change from the old-time feeling of politicians in particular, who in days gone by, scoffed at the idea of women being seriously concerned with gaining civil and economic privileges.

Bell Supports Move.

Confirming this is a message to Mrs. Butler from Congressman Thomas F. Bell, who says:

"My attention has been called to the fact that the organization of which you are acting chairman desires to secure the passage at the present session of the Georgia legislature of certain measure or measures affecting the legal and civil status of women citizens of our state with the intention of giving them in the instances cited the same rights which men citizens possess.

"Believing that there are remaining upon our statute books certain laws affecting the legal and civil status of women whose usefulness passed away with our changing economic conditions, I desire to say that I would like to see the laws of Georgia brought up to date in this regard in order that the women citizens of our state may no longer be discriminated against, but may have the full measure of justice and of right in keeping with the spirit of progress."

This is but one of the many messages received from congressmen from Georgia who have agreed to push the matter, according to the woman's organization. In addition comes word from Senator Frank C. Manson, of Georgia, who is to introduce an equal rights bill on the basis that a fifty-fifty proposition for men and women is not only fair but essential to progress. He states that he prefers a general law that will co-ordinate the present piecemeal statutes.

Ridiculous Law

In an interview Miss Egan said:

"While men and women generally admit the absurdity of the laws discriminating against women, they are not urging the removal of these sufficiently. Why in Georgia the present laws are ridiculously continued that had their origin in the days of old southern gallantry, when it was more or less necessity that prompted men to assume leadership.

"There are discriminations against women in this state that would make any self-respecting woman blush for her sex. The equal rights bill proposed by the national woman's party will bring Georgia laws affecting women up to date. It will accord to women citizens of the state the same measure of justice now possessed by men. Georgia women believe that the legislature which represents them will pass this bill. It will mean simply the modernization of the state laws to take care of women citizens as well as men citizens.

"People little realize," stated Miss Egan, "that the extension of suffrage to include women left women with legal discriminations against them incompatible with citizenship. The national woman's party is trying to impress on the communities that the matter of women being privileged is no man's standpoint and no woman's standpoint and in addition is impressing on lawmakers that it is a matter of the need of common citizenship to rid statute books of all the vestiges of the old English common law and thus to bring our own law into sensible line with other acts of progress.

DEBATE WAXES HOT AT HAGUE PARLEY

The Hague, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The conference on Russian affairs celebrated the Fourth of July by a display of oral fireworks which gave it for the moment a resemblance to the ever-pyrotechnical Genoa gathering. The wordy outburst came over the delicate problem of the treatment of the property of foreigners which had been confiscated by Russia and grew out of the soviet delegates insistence that the European experts should furnish some concrete and detailed statement of the world's claims against Russia.

To this demand the experts answered no. They were willing to submit round figures which could only be approximate, but declared that detailed figures would require months of investigation which the chaotic condition of Russia rendered all the more difficult.

1,600 000 French Claims.

France alone, they pointed out, had over 1,600,000 claimants. Moreover, the Hague conference was not a tribunal to adjudicate individual claims, being merely asked to make general recommendations. A claims tribunal might be established later they pointed out.

M. Litvinoff, for the Russians, warmly argued for the presentation of exact figures now. Many claims against Russia were exaggerated, he said, and Russia must know the facts in order to determine just claims. He threatened that unless the facts were forthcoming the Russian delegation might find it difficult to proceed further in the discussion of the private property question. He suggested that blank forms be distributed throughout the world for the claimants to fill out. It would take time but it would be worth it, he declared, and Russia would pay the bill out of her first credits from foreigners.

Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame retorted that when the proper time arrived all the details would be available and that would be when the Russian government announced its intention to pay claims which were properly adjudicated. The property holders had been barred from Russia and had no means of knowing the exact condition of their confiscated property.

M. Litvinoff, who seemed to be in fine form, returned the compliment with the criticism:

Litvinoff's Retort.

"If the powers had sent into Russia business experts like you and M. Cattier instead of military adventurers like Yudenitch, Denikine and Kolchak, Russia today would be in a largely improved condition."

The non-Russian experts adhered to their refusal to submit details, and the conference proceeded to take up the definite question of the treatment of engineering property expropriated by the soviet. Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame asked what practical plans the Russians had for restoring such property. He again warned the Russian delegation that credits were only possible if confidence in Russia was created, and this confidence depended upon how the soviet state treated the propery already seized.

M. Litvinoff promised to submit later a list of the industrial works which Russia intends to hand over to private companies as concessions or leases. He was silent regarding the past.

KLAN REFUSED REQUEST TO WEAR ROBES AT MEET

Macon, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) The Macon city council refused tonight to take any official part in a Ku Klux Klan ceremony that is being advertised for Thursday night of this week; refused to designate a representative to introduce the speaker, and refused a request from a representative of the Klansmen that they be permitted to appear in their costumes of white robes and hoods.

The auditorium committee reported in favor of granting the hall to the Ku Klux Klan for the purpose of having a lecture. There were no votes against the proposal.

Education Aims Text for Hughes Before Educators

Boston, July 4.—The blessing of democracy will flow only "in so far as it represents the rule of an intelligent and cultured people," Secretary Hughes declared in a paper on the "Aims in American Education," read here tonight before the National Education association.

"The American ideal," the secretary said, "and it must be maintained if we are to mitigate disappointment and unrest, is the ideal of equal educational opportunity, not merely for the purpose of enabling one to know how to earn a living and to fit into an economic status more or less fixed, but of giving play to talent and aspiration and to the development of mental and spiritual powers.

"The increased demand for educational opportunities and the extraordinary efforts to supply new facilities, particularly for higher education, were encouraging," Mr. Hughes said, but he added that there was apparent "much confusion with respect to the standards and aims of education." Vocational training, the teaching of the means to earn a livelihood, he said, would be taken care of, but he added:

Life More Abundant.

"Democracy cannot live on bread alone. It is not enough that one shall be able to earn living, or a good living. This is the foundation, but not the structure. What is needed is to have life more abundantly."

It was important, Mr. Hughes contended, that "the door of hope be kept open," by maintaining opportunities and standards of general education, "thus giving to those who start amid the direct necessities, and with slender advantages the chance to rise."

"This is of especial importance to our working people," he continued, "who are not to be viewed as mere economic units but as our laborers in the great enterprise of human progress."

As to educational standards, he said:

Life Not Pastime.

"It is impossible to provide a system of general education and ignore the need of discipline. The sentimentalists are just as dangerous as the materialists. Life is not a pastime, and democracy is not a holiday excursion. It needs men trained to think.

"The sentimentalists must not be allowed to ruin us by dissipating the energy that should be harnessed by our varied needs.

The true object of education was to give training, "which will enable one to make the most—that is—the best—of one's self," Mr. Hughes added.

"We must realize that the foundation should be laid in a few studies of the highest value, in self-discipline, This means self-denial, hard work, the inspiration of teachers with vision, and an appreciation of the priv- and obligations of citizenship in democracy."

Lack of Accuracy.

"In elementary schools this means training which insists at whatever cost, on the mastery by the student of the subject before him—on accuracy, the lack of which, I regret to say, is now conspicuous in all students of all grades."

In high schools and academies, he said, it meant "that we should stop scattering," in the present "bewildering and unsuccessful attempt at comprehensiveness."

A few fundamental, substantial studies, "thoroughly mastered" should be substituted, he said, adding:

"I am one of those who believe in the classical and mathematical training, and I do not think that we have found any satisfactory substitute for it. But the important point is the insistance upon concentration and thoroughness."

"Intellectual Vagrancy."

Mr. Hughes held that too much had been done in colleges to encourage "intellectual vagrancy," so that a "college education, outside the technical schools, may mean little or nothing.

"We have given too scant attention to the demands of training for citizenship," he said. "That implies adequate knowledge of our institutions, of their development and actual working. It means more than this in a world of new intimacies and complexities. It means adequate knowledge of other peoples and for this purpose there is nothing to take the place of the humanities, of the study of literature and history."

Mr. Hughes explained that he meant not history "of the distant past," but recent history, "with sufficient acquaintance with the past to understand the extraordinary happenings and developments which have taken place in our own times."

Annapolis Class Of 1881 Gathers At Tokio Dinner

Tokio, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The annual dinner, of the class of 1881, United States naval academy, Annapolis, was held here tonight, the first time in its history that the members gathered about the banquet board on foreign soil.

Admiral Baron Sotokichiuruy, imperial Japanese navy, retired, a member of the class, presided, while grouped about the table were Secretary of the Navy Denby of the United States, Admiral Uryu's classmates, and others prominent in naval, diplomatic and civil life in the west and the far east.

The dinner was held at the Bankers' club and the speeches were strictly informal in character.

While the banquet was in progress, Baroness Uryu entertained the ladies of the party at the Mitsui club and later at the theater.

The list of naval diners at the function included Premier Baron Kato, himself an admiral of the Japanese navy; Admiral Joseph Strauss, commander in chief of the United States fleet in Asiatic waters; Admiral Count Togo, Rear Admiral Kanje Kato, Admiral Yamashita, Captain Lyman A. Cotton, U. S. N., naval attache of the American embassy.

Prominent among the other guests were Charles Beecher Warren, American ambassador; Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese ambassador to the United States, now at home on leave; Masano Hanihara, one of the Japanese delegates to the Washington conference; Viscount Uchida, minister of foreign affairs; Price Tokugawa, delegate to the Washington conference; Viscount Kantaro Kaneke, privy councillor and president of the America's Friends society; Baron Shibusawa, merchant prince and leader of the Japanese movement for world peace, and Baron Goto, mayor of Tokio.

Boys, 8 and 10, Scuffle For Possession of Gun; One Fatally Wounded

Fitzgerald, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—In a scuffle between James Guy, 8, and Charles Lindsey, 10, for possession of a loaded revolver yesterday, the former was killed when the gun accidentally exploded. He lived but a short time.

The children were alone at the home of G. H. Guy, father of John Guy, and secured the gun from a trunk. It is said the Lindsey boy was trying to take the gun from his little companion when the accident occurred.

MACON RECORDER RESIGNS OFFICE

Macon, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—Curtis Nottingham, judge of the recorder's court and former postmaster of Macon, resigned his position as recorder tonight. City council accepted the resignation and immediately elected Sam B. Hunter, well-known Macon lawyer, as his successor.

Judge Nottingham's resignation came as a surprise. In a formal letter to council he explained his action. He said that the city code requires the recorder to reside in the city of Macon and he intends to move just outside the city, hence would not be eligible to hold the position. He asked that his resignation be accepted at once.

WORLD DISARMAMENT PLAN IS PRESENTED

Paris, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The plan for general world disarmament of the league of nathe temporary mixed commission on disarmament of the league of nations yesterday afternoon by Lord Robert Cecil, of Great Britain, was presented in full detail at this morning's session of the commission. This plan is said to have been favorably received by most of the delegates.

All nations, according to Lord Robert's plan, would sign a general disarmament agreement and would agree to go to the defense of nations in their respective regions or continents in case of aggression.

The principal American objection to article X. of the league of nations, it is held, would be met by this regional defensive plan inasmuch as the United States already is committed to a similar policy on the American continent under the Monroe Doctrine, and Lord Robert's plan is designed to limit each nation's obligations in defensive alliances to such regions.

Controlling Authority.

Lord Robert's plan provides for a permanent military commission to be the active controlling authority subject to approval by the council of the league of nations. The commission would determine whether the contracting powers were complying with the agreement for reduction of armaments and whether any state's preparations constituted a menace and if so what measures the other nations should take to aid the state so menaced.

These measures would be binding upon the aiding powers when approved by a three-fourths majority of the council.

The plan divides the world into four regions—America, Europe, Asia and Africa. Only the powers in each region would be obligated to aid a menaced nation upon the commission's recommendation approved by the league council. The reduction of armaments would be determined in advance and constantly checked up and if any nation exceeded the amount of armaments allowed under the agreement it would be subject to suspension from protection and to penalties provided for under article XVI. of the covenant of the league of nations. The reduction would apply to naval military and air forces.

All Eligible.

All members of the league of nations, and the United States, Germany and Russia, are eligible to enter into the proposed agreement, and any of these might adhere to it only partially if the council should approve such action and specified reductions in armaments are made.

All disputes as to the meaning and effect of the treaty, except in deciding whether armaments exceed the amount allowed shall be submitted to the permanent court of international justice for final decision.

The plan submitted by Lord Escher is only in outlined form. It provides for a ratio similar to that stipulated in the Washington agreement.

Lord Escher's plan gives the tentative ratios as follows: each unit representing 30,000 men: France six units; Italy four; Poland four; Czecho-Slovakia, Great Britain, Greece, Jugo-Slovakia, Holland, Rumania, and Spain three each; Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland two each; Portugal, one unit, and Germany, Austria, Bulgaria and Hungary to retain their forces as fixed by the peace treaties.

These ratios should apply only to the home forces. Each nation would be free to determine the number necessary for colonial and overseas purposes. This ratio agreement would be effective two months after being signed by all the participants and would continue for ten years.

CONGRESSWOMAN FOR RE-ELECTION

Coweta, Okla., July 4.—Standing on the site where the first missionary school in the old Indian county was established and where her mother, a teacher in that school, met her father, Miss Alice Robertson, Oklahoma congresswoman, opened her campaign for the republican nomination to succeed herself.

Speaking under the auspices of two fraternal orders, Miss Robertson reiterated that her only platform was "a Christian, an American and a republican." She opened her address with a scriptural passage which she read from a large Bible.

Miss Robertson declared she "had never made and never would make a pre-election promise." She added that circumstances could easily make it impossible to keep promises honestly. The speaker defended her opposition to the cash bonus for soldiers on the ground that the nation is not financially able to carry out an extensive bonus program. Her own war record, she asserted, was proof that she had supported "the boys."

Fess Wants More Americanization Work for Aliens

Westerville, O., July 4.—Declaring that "we may be compelled to forbid by drastic legislation any and all aliens from verbally assaulting our government on any occasion," Congressman S. D. Fess, candidate for the republican nomination for the United States senate, asserted in an address here today that the country must give more attention to an Americanization program.

"Some of us now are seriously considering the necessity of requiring all discussion in forum or press where government questions are considered to be carried on in the English language or in the presence of a government official," he continued. "At times like these, coming out of a war period, where all fundamental principles of economics were for the time suspended, and where much suffering was inevitable, these agitators seize upon the occasion to further their dangerous doctrines by holding the government responsible for the ills of all the times.

"Such a situation calls for united effort. The work cannot be done by legislation. It must be done by education.

"I want to see uninterrupted prosperity. Labor must be employed to insure it. Capital must be free to invest to insure labor employment. Government operation of industry will not secure it. Russia is an outstanding warning. Governmental interference unduly will not secure it.

"The government's function here is to co-operate; to open the door of opportunity for profitable industry, to avoid the suffering through unemployment. This will not be done by governmental or rather political operation nor will it be aided by much interference with the laws of legitimate trade and industry."

AUTOMOBILE WRECK CLAIMS TWO VICTIMS

Macon, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—Two victims of an automobile crash near Haddock, in Jones county, yesterday died today and another is in a critical condition. The dead are Miss Hughie Lee Adams, of Macon, and Joel S. Etheridge, of Haddock, while the injured is Miss Carrie Kitchens, of Haddock.

Miss Kitchens has a fractured skull and it is not thought she can live. Miss Adams sustained a lacerated right leg, a fractured left leg and internal injuries.

Miss Adams, a sister-in-law of Etheridge and a niece of Miss Kitchens, was visiting in Haddock. They were out driving with Mr. Etheridge when the accident occurred.

Those who witnessed the accident stated that Etheridge was driving at a fast rate of speed when he drove up behind a truck of the James Lumber company containing 3,000 feet of lumber. The negro driver of the truck pulled to one side of the road, it is said, and Etheridge shot past. As the car passed the front wheels of the truck it careened and turned over. The heavy truck passed over the bodies of the three occupants.

would be no less an abridgement to deny men to bargain collectively, and governments cannot tolerate any class or group domination through force. It will be a sorry day when group domination is reflected in our laws. Government and the laws which government is charged with enforcing must be for all the people ever aiming at the common good"

The president declared with emphasis that his "one outstanding conviction" after 16 months in the white house was the greatest traitor to his country is he who appeals to prejudice and inflames passion, when sober judgment and honest speech are so necessary to firmly establish tranquillity and security.

International Affairs.

Referring briefly to international relations of the United States, Mr. Harding said that "all is well."

"They are securer today with more assuring prospects of peace than ever before in the history of the republic. New guarantees have recently been added, by the very process of exchanging viewpoints and bringing the spokesmen of great nations to the conference table, and for the exchange of views, and to resolve to do together those fine and nobler things which no one nation could do alone."

At the outset of his address the president told his fellow townsmen, it was "exceedingly good to come home and meet with you again."

STANLEY ATTACKS PATERNALIST LAWS

New York, July 4.—An attack on the "insane and pernicious saturnalia of socialistic legislation" passed by and being urged upon congress was made today by Senator Stanley, democrat, Kentucky, in an address here at a Tammany hall celebration. Traditional principles of the American government are being abandoned, he declared in the so-called "progressive" movement and the people are being harassed by innumerable government boards and bureaus.

Criticising the "progressive wing" of the republican party, he said it was the most ingenius inventor of ways and means invading the vested rights of the states and the liberties of the citizens."

"The great trouble with these vociferous 'progressives,'" said Senator Stanley, "is that they are forever moving in the wrong direction. Their energy and ingenuity is in the main confined to the discovery of some new method by which a centralized and omnipotent power may extend its inquisitorial and ubiquitous authority. Weddings are to be supervised by hygienic experts, and marital rights determined by some eugenic fool.

Swarms of Inspectors.

"You cannot milk a cow without a federal inspector at your heels. The factory, the mill, the counting house, the office, and the home literally swarm with a horde of petty and pestiferous representatives of this paternalistic regime.

"And the worst is yet to come for . . . bills are now pending to regulate, supervise, censor or control the public press, public utilities, the sale of securities, the mining of coal and minerals, the weaving of cloth, horse racing, football, moving pictures, Sunday amusements, everything in fact, from the birth of the baby to the burial of the corpse and from the operation of a railroad to the setting of a hen.

"Under the terms of the bill to regulate horse racing by censoring the mails and the press, a lad in college in writing to his mother and stating the odds on a football game is liable to a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment in the penitentiary for five years.

Parting of Ways.

"In short in fine, we have come to the parting of the ways. The old guard, impotent and discredited, is left to the mercy of the non-partisan league and a triumphant sacialistic organization masquerading under the emblem of the bull moose.'

Senator Stanley appealed for constitutional government and a decent realization of federal powers, asking if constitutions were to be "removed at the whim of omnipotent numbers, maddened by the blatant appeals of blind fanatics and flannel mouth demagogues."

He urged followers of the democratic party's founders not to sit idly by or tamely and silently submit to the clamorous and turbulent determination by an organized mob of 'the right to review the decisions of courts and to supervise and to determine the most intimate relations of our social and domestic life."

"Then have we passed from democracy to mobocracy," said Senator Stanley in conclusion, "from government by-laws and courts and congresses to a government by hysteria and emotion, from order to chaos."

Fatal Auto Accident.

Greenwood, S. C., July 4.—Mrs. Julia M. Busby, of Bath, S. C., 87 years of age, is probably fatally injured as a result of an automobile accident near Ninety-Six last night, when a car driven by E. M. Busby of Greenwood, in which Mrs. Busby was riding, turned over in a ditch.

BIG SUIT FILED AGAINT GEORGIA BUSINESS CONCERN

Athens, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—One of the largest civil suits ever filed in the eastern division of the northern district of the federal court today was instituted in Athens with Deputy Walter Cornett, when the Central Union Trust company of New York city brought suit against the Appalachian corporation for the sum of $1,368,488.

The Appalachain concern is headed by Louis B. Magid, with most of its holdings in this state, located in Rabun and Habersham counties, around Cornelia and Tallulah Falls. It owns what is considered the largest apple orchard in the world, between Cornelia and Tallulah.

In 1917 the company was authorized to issue bonds to the extent of ten million dollars and an amount totaling $1,234,400 was issued and bought by the banking concern bringing suit. Interest to the amount of $134,088 has accumulated and remains unpaid, it is alleged and it is to recover this principal and interest that the suit has been brought.

Back of the bonds is the real estate of the concern and other tangible property, said to include warehouse holdings in New Orleans and many thousands of acres of land in Macon county, Missouri.

Mr. Magid is well known in Athens. He is said to have made considerable money out of the transaction which resulted in the Georgia Railway and Power company acquiring the power concessions at Tallulah Falls. THIRTY ARE INJURED WHEN TRAIN DERAILS

Kansas City, Mo., July 4.—Thirty persons were injured, none believed fatally, when St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train No. 20 from Springfield, Mo., was derailed near here late today.

There were about 150 passengers on the train. These injured were hurt when thrown against seats and cut by glass from broken windows.

The engine of the wrecked train ran through an open switch into a boxcar filled with railroad ties. The car was demolished, the engine turned over, and most of the ties fell on top of it. None of the three cars of the train left the rails. Most of the injured persons were residents of Kansas City.

THE BODY BUILDER

and depends more upon the selection of proper food than upon anything else.

The reason is simple—the right kind of food digests promptly and is absorbed into the blood for building sound tissue; while food that digests slowly may ferment and lead to serious conditions.

Grape-Nuts—the delicious cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley—is so easy to digest that even delicate people and young children thrive on it.

This is only natural, because Grape-Nuts is baked for 20 hours, which transforms and partially pre-digests the starch elements, resulting in easy digestion and quick assimilation.

Served with milk or cream Grape-Nuts is a complete food—and along with its nutritive qualities is that wonderful flavor!

What Is Cement?

What is this finer-than-flour building material called cement, that you can mix with water, sand, and stone or pebbles, and cast into all sorts of shapes that become as hard and enduring as solid rock?

Portland cement consists principally of silica, lime, and alumina. In cement manufacture these are obtained from (1) Cement rock and limestone; (2) Limestone or marl and shale or clay; (3) Blast-furnace slag and limestone.

First the rock is quarried and transported to the mill. Then it is ground to a powder, analyzed, and the several ingredients mixed in accurate proportions.

Next it is subjected to long and gradually increasing heat until, at about 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, the mixed materials decompose and fuse into hard balls, known as clinker.

Then this hard clinker is cooled, mixed with a definite proportion of gypsum, and again ground to a powder so fine that at least 78 per cent of it will pass through a sieve having 40,000 holes to the square inch.

Finally this finished product must be analyzed to determine that it conforms to the exacting specification requirements of cement manufacture, packed in bags and placed in cars for shipment.

The manufacture of cement is a complex process involving great care, skill and expense, and requiring an enormous capital investment.

Yeast No "Fad" Say Scientists

The greatesst scientific minds agree that yeast is one of the most important medical discoveries. No method of banishing skin eruptions or building health has yet been found which can equal it. This is because yeast contains certain vital elements which are lacking in the modern diet. Already millions of people have secured amazing benefits from yeast. Recently, however, a new process has been discovered, called "ironization," through which people are securing benefits from yeast in just half the usual time. This process, embodied only in Ironized Yeast, helps to immediately convert the vital yeast elements into firm tissue and rich pure blood. If weak, thin or run-down—or if troubled with pimples, blackheads or boils, it will pay you to try Ironized Yeast at once. To try Ironized Yeast entirely free simply mail postcard for Famous 3-Day FREE Test. Address Ironized Yeast Co., Dept. 87, Atlanta, Ga. Ironized Yeast is recommended and guaranteed by all good druggists.—(adv.)

"School Days" At Children's Matinee At Howard

A special treat is in store for Atlanta boys and girls who attend the children's matinee at the Howard Friday morning. The children's idol, a freckle face boy himself, Wesley Barry, will be seen in "School Days," the feature attraction which is playing all week at the Howard. This picture, because of its peculiar interest to children, has been offered by the management of the Howard theater to the Better Films committee for their matinee Friday morning, and being a first run picture and containing every element of interest to children, should draw a large crowd.

"School Days" is the story of a boy, Speck Brown, a country lad, as orphan, who finally meets up with a rich uncle and is sent east to school. He mingles with the youngsters of wealthy people, but he tries to be chummy and they snub him. Deserting his uncle he goes back to the swimming, hole, to his pal, a dog, and to the familiar little shanty, the school house.

A Snookie comedy, called "The Overall Hero" and an educational feature entitled "Dixie" showing many familiar Southern scenes, will complete the program.

Who's Who in the Story.

Diana Langley, who possesses to a superlative degree a quality of "lure wished for her at birth by her youthful aunt, Marjorie Langley, herself a noted beauty, to whom Stephen Dale, a wealthy bachelor, has been devoted for years, impetuously declares her love for Dale, and on being told by him that he can never marry because of a trace of insanity in his family, to soothe her pride, elopes with and marries Alex Leigh, a young naval officer, at the same time that Ted Saunders, a hopeless suitor of Diana's hand, marries Sylvia Bennett, a friend of Diana's, inclined to "cattishness." On her way to California with her husband, Diana meets Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance, and with him is accidentally left behind when the limited pulls out of a New Mexican town. They are picked up by a Spaniard named Dominguez, who makes Johnston, whom Diana adopts as a fiance for propriety's sake, a prisoner, and tries to marry her, but she escapes, only to meet with a worse adventurer. In her second escape, she is badly hurt, but is rescued by Dr. Maxwell Borden, a former noted New York physician, who, with his sister, Cynthia Borden, are people with a mysterious past in which Dale and his dead uncle are somewhat concerned. Borden falls in love with Diana, who is determined not to return to Alex. Dominguez is also persistent and Dale, who finally finds her, shows signs of capitulation to her irresistible charm. Under the circumstances, Dale finds it wisest to go away forever.

But at Diana's request he goes to Dominguez's house to find Johnston.

INSTALLMENT NO. 57.

A Midnight Intruder.

Diana accepted the folded paper from Doctor Borden, knowing that it was the promised communication from Dale.

As she unfolded it, she caught Cynthia's mutely appealing glance and inclined her head reassuringly.

For a moment she was at a loss to explain the letter to the doctor, who was naturally amazed that she had a correspondent in that part of the world. But on an instant, she remembered Lynn Johnston and foresaw a plausible explanation.

"If that's from Dominguez, the cur—," began the doctor, as soon as he had closed the door upon the Mexican boy.

Diana shook her haed.

"It's from Lynn Johnston," she fibbed, "I'm awfully relieved to know that he's alive."

She scanned the page eagerly:

"Dear child," she read in Dale's familiar handwriting, "I have kept my word and paid a visit upon your friend Dominguez. I find him to be an even more amazing and mysterious person than you led me to believe. I was regaled with cocktails which haven't been tasted in this country since the Volstead enforcement and entertained with some Chopin which mine host executed more than creditably upon a grand piano which might have come out of Louis XIV's salon.

"On the face of it, it seems difficult to believe that your Johnston, had other than an Arabian Night's sort of entertainment during his sojourn here. Dominguez assures me that he left two days ago. Since that doesn't tally very well with Dominguez's conversation with you, which occurred, I believe, about that same time, I intend doing a bit of sleuth work. A wire to various associations of Johnston's with which I am familiar, should elicit a response from him somewhere along the line, if he is really at liberty. Meanwhile I propose to watch Dominguez for a bit.

"Yours, if you need me,

"STEVE."

Beneath there was a postscript:

"For God's sake, be careful, Di! Don't go wandering about alone and don't take the Borden affair too trustfully!"

Evasions.

Conscious that the doctor and Cynthia were watching her with well-bred curiosity, Diana flushed a little as she tore up the note. She hated subterfuge.

"Johnston is free apparently. He doesn't mention anything about his health, so I dare say he is quite recovered—if he ever really was ill, that is."

"Is he coming here to see you?" inquired the doctor.

Diana was startled.

"N-o-o," she admitted.

"Isn't it rather curious that he shouldn't wish to assure himself of your well-being?"

The doctor's suggestion was food for thought. If Dominguez had really told Dale the truth about Johnston's departure, it did seem a bit queer that he shouldn't have been concerned about the girl wtih whom he had been lost; that he should have dashed off to freedom with only Dominguez's word as to Diana's safety.

"He's already gone," she replied, "Or rather, he must be gone by this time." she added hastily.

Cynthia Borden, who had guessed the truth about Diana's correspondent, came to her rescue.

"I think, Max, that perhaps Diana doesn't wish to tell us that Mr. Johnston was much interested in her and that he was hurt because he realized the hopelessness of his situation. Isn't that it, Diana?"

Diana nodded, grateful for the motive which Cynthia's agile mind had supplied. She felt guilty none the less in accusing the absent Johnston of a sentiment which she was sure he had never entertained.

As soon as she could accomplish it without it seeming too obviously a retreat, she rose to say good night.

"I'm just a tiny bit tired tonight. I know you won't mind if I run along to bed."

She kissed Cynthia and gave her hand to the doctor, who held open the door for her. His eyes searched her face anxiously.

It wasn't until she was curled up in bed with the covers drawn close against the night chill that she realized that Doctor Borden had failed to latch the door into the passage which led to her room and it had swung slightly open. He and Cynthia still sat at the supper table and their voices were perfectly audible to her. For the second time, she was forced to play the unwilling evesdropper.

Cynthia was speaking earnestly:

"Max, ever since Diana came I've been questioning the wisdom of our staying here until we die. Must we? Can't there ever be any more life—real life—for us anywhere? Don't you think we have atoned sufficiently?"

"There was no atonement necessary for you," the doctor's voice was very gentle.

Cynthia's response was a murmur barely audible.

"But you are right, dear," the doctor went on, "Diana has brought us the call of the living world. Our ears were not closed against it as we thought. After young Leigh has come we will go away, no matter what the outcome of his visit is. We will go to California and then across to Japan—China—India. Who knows—we may find peace there."

"Suppose," Cynthia's voice was very low, "suppose Diana chooses Leigh?"

There was the sound of a chair being pushed back. Then the doctor's voice:

"It would be justice—"

Diana lost the rest of the sentence. Her attention was distracted by a shadow that fell suddenly across the window of her room.

She lay rigid, scarcely breathing.

The head and shoulders of a man were faintly outlined against the starlight.

A hand came forth and began softly to raise her window.

Diana screamed.

Side Talks

TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE

There is a certain verse in the Bible that always makes me wish I were a minister because I think I could preach a dandy sermon on it.

The verse is this:

"And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

I think that and the twin verse: "Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known," are the most satisfying picture of a future existence in all the Bible or all literature.

We think we know the truth about a good many things nowadays, but do we?

What Do We Know?

What do we know the truth about? Public questions? Do those who know the most about them know the perfect truth? Alas, no! I think no one deserves greater sympathy than the man in public life who wants to do right and stand for truth and who finds himself plunged into a whirlpool of facts and arguments and biases all purporting to be the whole truth. And how much less should we know the truth than he.

Do we know the truth about our friends? Surely not. Those we love? A little more truth but even so only a little. Ourselves? Perhaps the least of all.

Suppose one could have a marriage in which there were both loved and perfect truth. Would it be a wonderful thing—or would it not be able to stand at all?

The Wife's Blackmail.

A man said to me, "You have to lie. Life makes you. Love makes you. A marriage without some lies would be impossible. People can't stand the truth. They blackmail each other into lies. We've been married eight years. I love my wife as much as ever but I do take more interest in the society of other women than I did when I was courting her in the first year or two. Yet she couldn't bear to know that. And so she blackmails me into pretending that I don't, for the sake of peace. Other men do the same, I know. I suppose it has to be but it does seem as if marriage would be a stronger edifice if it had truth as its foundation."

"And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." What a breath of ozone that seems to carry with it! And just as we cannot breathe pure ozone with the lungs we now have, perhaps we should not be able to survive in an atmosphere of pure truth.

But I like the idea that some day we shall so develop that we shall be able to breathe that purer air.

A Heaven Worth While.

I like the feeling that all the efforts we make today toward comprehending truth, and toward living truth, are bringing us nearer to that capacity.

I'm not partial to the conception of heaven that pictures us playing on harps. I never was attracted by the vision of golden streets, with walls of amethyst and gates of pearl (I'd much prefer a wood road in May powdered with horseshoes violets). I hate the suggestion of eternal idleness. But, oh, I do love the promise of a clearer air where we shall know the truth and the truth shall make us free.

Free from anxiety, free from fear, from vanity and jealousy and the petty tyrannies and passions, I think it means. And above all free from self. Don't you often wish you could get away from yourself? I do. And I think that means we shall.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

I think it was in his famous novel, "Three Men in a Boat," that Mr. Jerome K. Jerome gave a fatal description of two elaborately dressed girls who joined a picnic party on the river. They were, if I remember, dressed in flowing silks, abundantly garnished with flounces, shod it patent leather and gloved in pale suede. They had an awful time, for nobody respected them; they were compelled to sit upon a tree trunk "which had not been dusted for a long time." Finally they were told to get down on their knees and wash up the crockery. I suppose they had what they deserved.

Many a girl has a horrible time by thus breaking one of the strictest rules that govern her sex, namely, by wearing clothes which do not befit the occasion. One sees startling instances of this; one meets lace on the tennis court, and twice in four months I observed a lady wearing breeches suitable for mountaineering; in each case she was taking a run in an automobile. Girls make themselves rather funny when they do these things, and they do them with such beautiful innocence, proposing to be a success and determined, a little for the benefit of men, and much more for the benefit of the other women, to exhibit their most striking clothes. And they do strike, though unfortunately the wrong nail. It seems to me that dress is one of the things that had better be underdone, rather than overdone. A woman prevails much less than she thinks by means of her clothes; it is not even her face that floats her into love and fortune; it is something intangible, the aroma of her personality. Let her give it liberty and not impede it by causing herself to become conspicuous by being different from everybody else.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," Etc.

At this time of year it is especially important to exercise care in buying cornmeal and oatmeal.

Fresh water-ground cornmeal has a pleasant smell, and runs through the fingers without caking or clotting. A musty odor shows it is too old. Meal from white flint corn is mush more desirable. Sift it at need—the bran helps to keep it. Cornmeal, kiln-dried and bolted, as it has to be for the grocers to save it from spoiling, is, in a sort, a libel on the real thing. In it there is not much choice save between fine and coarse grinding. Fine ground makes clammy bread, hence it is to be avoided. But even kiln-drying should not quite take away the original fragrance. Perfect meal shows under the microscope round white grains like fairy hail.

In buying oatmeal, beware of that which has much grain dust between the grains. Examine carefully a double handful before buying in quantity. If you find even one trace of weevil, reject it. Weevil and sundry mites are the bane of grain foods if kept over long. Hence the caution of keeping cereals in bright metal away from dampness and molds.

Of course, when you buy in packages, it is not always possible to make these tests, but if you find objectionable matter after you open the package, you should always returu it.

Shur-on Glasses

Do you wear the same glasses for work, dress-up and play?

Glasses, you know, have a lot to do with a correct personal appearance. While rimmed glasses go well with your attire for work and play, they are entirely out of place when worn at evening or formal engagements. For such occasions, rimless glasses are the only thing.

We suggest that you consult us regarding the correct style of glasses for each occasion. We can quickly match your lenses and fit them into the proper and becoming styles of Shur-on frames and mountings. Shur-ons are noted for their superiority of construction and becoming designs.

TELEPHONE PERSONALITY.

One day last week we were talking about personality in letter writing, projecting something of oneself to a friend by the medium of paper and ink. Personality in letter writing is important and so is personality over the telephone. If you call a strange number and a disagreeable impression you immediately receive! That is one way, though not a very admirable one of projecting personality.

You can give an impresston of beauty even over the phone.

How different from the impression received when a pleasant voice gives a courteous answer and you have the feeling of smiling good will at the other end of the wire. Most people do not know how to answer a telephone. The statement applies particularly to the young girls sitting at switchboards in our modern business offices. There may be quickness and efficiency behind the crisp, curt tones, but there is absolutely no personality and no feeling that this firm would go out of its way to be nice to you. In these modern days your home or your office is usually visited first by telephone. What sort of impression do you give out when you pick up the receiver?

I do not know which is worse, the voice whicch is crisp, curt and impersonal, or the voice which may mean to be pleasant enough, but which lacks force and spirit. This lack of spirit is often due to nothing but the inability to throw the voice properly or to enunciate properly.

These are defects which can and should be overcome. If you put pleasantness and good will into your manner you will give a good impression of yourself over the telephone wire. Remember that the other person has only your voice and words by which to judge you.

V. S. A.—The preparations you mention are made from dyes and some henna, which fact often confuses people so they do not realize that they are really having their hair dyed, but the henna contributes little beyond the word.

All that you can do now is to be patient until nature restores your hair to its natural shade. After about a month, the deeper shades will have bleached out and it will not look so artificial. The hair will then begin to show its gloss and lose its deadened appearance. The worst will then be over, and if you want to hasten the recovery, cut off as much of the length as you can spare.

Tomorrow—Baking the Hair.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Spicy Touch.

Save the juice from pickled fruit and add it to the water in which the ham is boiled. It will improve the flavor.

Tarnished Silver.

If you have need to clean table silver in a hurry, boil it in water to which a lump of washing soda has been added.

To Test Cantaloupe.

To tell when a cantaloupe is ripe, press the end firmly with the fingers and if it yields easily the melon is usually ripe.

A Sickroom Hint.

In almost all instances it is better to let the patient sleep when he can, rather than waken him to administer medicine and food.

Embroidery Hoops in the Kitchen.

Fasten a pair of embroidery hoops around the top of your jelly bag and see how much easer it is to put in the fruit and how free from stains are the hands.

STRIBLING GETS DECISION OVER ABEL IN MACON

Central City Fighter Now Claims Welterweight Championship of South

Macon Writer Gives Stribling Eight Out of Ten Rounds, With Two Rounds Even. Ed Alexander, Savannah, Referee.

BY ED GAMBLE.

Macon, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) When a 17-year-old schoolboy who numbers his boxing bouts at 41 steps into the ring to face a 30-year-old veteran battler of upwards of 250 fights it is generally conceded that the lad has done a thing worthy of commendation but when the youth accomplishes what many believed to be impossible, defeating his older opponent, taking eight rounds, with more than equal claim to the other two, such a feat is considered worthy of highest praise.

That is what happened at Central park this afternoon and Macon fans are praising young Stribling most heartily for convincingly beating Jake Abel, who, prior to the scrap yesterday afternoon was recognized as the southern welterweight champion.

Before a crowd variously figured at 1,500 to 2,500, including the scores upon scores of distant admirers, distant only because they did not have the price of admission, who lined the tops of a train of box cars just outside the park, young Stribling entered the ring at 5:49, his heart set on acquitting himself creditably before the largest crowd of homefolks possibly who ever saw him fight. So well did the youngster accomplish his task that when Referee Ed Alexander, of Savannah, held up his hand signifying that Strib had won and Jake Abel had gone down in defeat there was not a dissenting vote from the vast throng.

Immediately after Strib's tanned right arm was raised to the heavens signifying victory the fans broke into a prolonged cheer as Pa Stribling, father-manager of the youngster, bounced through the ropes, threw his arms around his boy and literally lifted the lad into the air.

Hugged by Mother.

The boy's mother was not far behind his mother. She did not climb into the ring, but reaching through the ropes, she patted him on his tanned body, her face beaming. Only to be more radiant as her boy jumped out of the ring to the ground throwing his arms around his mother's neck.

After Baby Stribling had taken a well-earned decision from Piline Price in the four-round appetizer, Jordan Sheppard had knocked out Non-stop Wilson, of Milledgeville, and Harry Allen had gone to a draw in six rounds with Jack White, the announcement was made that the semi-final bout would follow the main go.

Young Stribling entered the ring at 5:49, getting a good hand from the fans. The champion followed a moment later and was equally well applauded for the spectators were familiar with his record of being a clean fighter. The fans nervously watched the process of examination of the fighters' hands, the adjustment of the gloves and preliminary instructions of the referee, Ed Alexander.

Stribling's weight was announced as 146 1-2 and Abel's poundage 144 3-4.

Strib opened with a left punch to the face, following up with short jabs which rocked Abel's head. The infighting appeared even but Strib counted several body blows immediately thereafter. Strib was given the round by a large margin.

In the second round, Strib again opened with a straight left, landing on Jake's nose. Following the infighting which ensued, Strib sent four short arm swings to the right side of Jake's face. Abel countered with a left to Strib's right cheek. The infighting appeared even, the round being conceded a draw.

Continuing on the offensive, Strib again opened with the initial drive, a left: following up e rocked Abel's head with rapid rights and lefts, hooking him a stiff right under the jaw. Abel appeared tired and began to hang on, standing still a moment as Strib grinned. Abel sent a left to Strib's jaw but the youngster only smiled and during the infighting had the decided advantage, the bell finding the men in a clinch.

Fifth Round.

Another left to Abel's face opened the fifth stanza. Strib rushed Abel, punching short jabs with his left into Abel's jaw, counting a right uppercut to the chin, which failed to land full. Strib rocked Abel's head with rights and lefts. Abel missed a wild swing to Strib's head.

Abel was wobbly at the opening of the sixth. He made a sudden recovery and hit Strib a good right just below the left eye. Strib retaliated with two lefts to the face. Abel appeared tired and swung wildly at Strib's head and missing. Strib landed a left to the jaw, but missed the follow-up, the fighters clinching at the bell.

Seventh Round.

Kidney punches were exchanged at the start of the seventh, the scrappers swapping blows to the neck. Strib counted a left to the head and the following infighting was even. The round was considered a draw.

Strib started the eighth with a left to the lunch-counter and the fighters clinched. Coming out of it, Strib cracked Abel a full left swing to the jaw. Abel was clearly on the defensive, although he did not yield but kept the action up. Abel slipped, following a slight punch from Strib, but was up like a flash. They clinched at the bell.

In the ninth Strib landed lefts to the face three times. Jake wasted a left swing and Strib missed an uppercut. They clinched, Strib landing at the bell.

Jake rushed in, seemingly greatly refreshed for the tenth round. Strib met him in the same manner, however, hitting Jake in every part of his anatomy. He rushed Abel to the ropes. Strib finished with a left to the jaw and the referee raised his arm.

In the semi-final, Kid Joiner, of Macon, knocked out Phil Keith, of Birmingham, in the second round. Jordan Sheppard, of Macon, knocked out Non-Stop Wilson, of Milledgeville, in the second round. Baby Strib won a decision from Bill Price, Macon. Another fight was a draw, Macon boys participating.

Nashville Wins Two.

Nashville Tenn., July 4.—Nashville won a double-header from Chattanooga this afternoon, the score of both games being the same, 7 to 2. Lucas' batting helped him win his own game in the first, while Bedgood's wildness was followed by hits in the last and the locals had little trouble scoring. Morse stole home in the second game, making his third theft of the year. Lucas, in defeating Chattanooga, made it 15 wins for the season.

Sponge Saves Kansas From Knockout By Leonard

Loser's Arm Was Broken During the Third Round Claim Made by Friends

Michigan City Ind., July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Benny Leonard, world's champion lightweight fighter, rocked Rocky Kansas all over the ring in the eighth round of their scheduled 10 round titular contest today and the Buffalo, N. Y., challenger's seconds threw in the sponge to save their man from what apparently was going to be the first counting out of his career.

Following claims by Kansas' friends that the bone in his left arm just above the wrist had been broken in the third round of the fight, and that Kansas had fought gamely on for five more rounds with the member practically useless, the fighter was examined tonight by Doctor C. K. Briggs, of Chicago, and Dr. A. L. Barone, of Buffalo, N. Y., a member of Kansas' camp. They said the bone was broken.

Dan Rogers, Kansas' manager, asserted he threw the sponge into the ring against Kansas' wishes in order to save further injury to his arm.

The battle will go down in the record books as only a technical knockout for the champion, but it will stick in Rocky Kansas' memory as the most severe beating he ever received.

Blood running from his mouth down his naked chest and tears trickling through the heavy growth on his cheeks Kansas, held up by his manager, could only moan: "He whipped me, he whipped me, and, oh, how he can hit."

Kansas seemed to be out on his feet, but it was the disgrace of the sponge that seemed to hurt him most, for in his rough career of many victories only Benny Leonard had ever before even sent him to the floor and Leonard failed to do that today, although there seemed little doubt that one more right cross would have put Rocky flat on his back for a long count.

Leonard, surrounded by the hundreds who rushed to his corner, smiled incessantly after the bout and declared himself well satisfied with the result.

Leonard Still Champ.

"They thought because Kansas had stayed the limit in three other bouts with me that I couldn't put him out. They said when Britton beat me that I was through. I guess I showed today that I'm still a champion, that I still have the punch and that I can still move fast.

"If there are any fighters who doubt, I want them to know that I still have plenty of what I gave Kansas today."

There was no doubt in the minds of the more than 20,000 spectators who came to the inaugural battle at Floyd Fitzsimmon's new open-air arena that Leonard today not only was Kansas master, but that he was just as fast, just a rugged and just as powerful in those terrific rights as the day when he won the title from Freddie Welsh years ago.

The champion just toyed with his husky young opponent who can be given credit only for standing like a man before the champion's onslaught and for struggling gamely to do what today was impossible—trade blows with Leonard. Kansas did not take a single round. He did not land a solid blow. He failed to do more than ruffle the champion's hair, but he never quit trying to get in one of those mule strength blows which have sent such boxers as Ritchie Mitchell down for the count in one round.

The only time Rocky even got an even break was in the first session. That was an even exchange of dancing and sparring with no heavy blows.

From then on, Leonard increased his speed and superiority round by round, whipping in uppercuts and semi-clinches which left Kansas looking from side to side as if wondering where they came from.

Leonard Shoots Right.

As the rounds passed Leonard began shooting over his famous right cross, mingling it with left hooks which kept the challenger mystified. The number of Leonard's effective blows increased with every round and in the seventh he was figuratively throwing gloves at the Buffalo lad.

Kansas repeatedly swung hard, trying especially for the stomach, but Leonard always danced away, invariably returning the arrow-like blows to Rocky's jaw.

Kansas kept shaking his head in the early rounds over his misses. Once or twice he smiled, but Leonard always quickly wiped off the smile with a quick jab.

Then came the eighth. Kansas' mouth was bleeding as he came from his corner Leonard shot in blows so fast that the blood soon came in a stream. Kansas backed, wobbled, swayed and reeled, under the blows, his hands at his side, his mind evidently a blank. As Leonard carefully measured him for what probably would have been the k. o. blow, the sponge went in and under its sprinkle of water lay Rocky Kansas' championship hopes, as completely drenched as if an ocean of water had swamped them.

CRACKERS LOSE BOTH GAMES OF HOLIDAY BILL

Pels Win Opening Game 11 to 7 and Craft Hurls Great Ball for Second Win

Knaupp Wins Afternoon Game 3 to 0 With Triple With Bases Full—Robert Smith Stars in Morning Game.

BY MIKE THOMAS.

The Crackers lost both ends of the regular annual double bill yesterday to the Pelicans by the score of 11 to 7 and 3 to 0. The morning game was one of thos marathon events that lasted a full nine innings in spite of poor baseball, rain and various other unpleasantnesses, but the afternoon battle made up for what the first game lacked in the way of baseball.

For fear of being called an umpire baiter we are not going to relate the fact that Umpire Tandy apparently missed a lovely third strike on Cotton Knaupp in the third inning, with the count three and two. Then this worthy took a mean advantage of the locals by slamming out a triple with the bases full. It was very sad—too sad to relate, and incidentlly these were the total runs of the visiting flock, or covey, or drove or whatever the correct term for a bunch of Pelicans happens to be. Of course the next man up might have done the same thing—but for the sake of the poor umpires we heartily wish that some other batter would have trippled, if it had to be.

A Floral Tribute.

Some of Robert Smith's ardent admirers from West Point, Georgia, where this flashy young shortstop played during 1920 presented him with a large floral piece in the shape of a horseshoe during the course of the afternoon engagement, Owing to a misunderstanding it was announced to the crowd that the piece was presented by the Agoga's class of the Baptist Tabernacle, which team Smith played with for several years. Smith called this correspondent and asked that we make a statement that the piece was presented by his friends in West Point in justice to these people.

Smith is an Atlanta boy and is playing some wonderful baseball for the Pelicans—in the morning game he rapped out four doubles out of five trips up—much to the chagrin of the locals.

Craft Pitches Great Ball.

Pitcher Craft, who was suspended for a long period of time, if we remember correctly—for thirty days—for landing on Steamboat Williams after the manner made famous by a brick house, again donned the Pelican spangles or feathers through the kindness of Prexy Martin, and hurled a three hit game against the Crackers. He had the local batters eating out of his large and ample right hand all through the game, and with the sterling support that was accorded him by his teammates, only twice during the game, in the opening inning and in the ninth, did the locals get a man to second. Hock, who was walked in the first, went to the keystone on a sacrifice, and Guyon lit there in the ninth frame.

How the Pels Scored.

Craft leading off in the third hit a single through first. Bogart singled to center and Gilbert beat out an infield hit, filling the bases. With the count three and two, Knaupp hit a long fly to Mayer, that this worthy misjudged and it went for three bases. Knaupp hit this ball harder than we have seen any ball player hit one for a long time and no one could blame Mayer for his misjudgment, for at its highest point the drive was not more than twenty feet high.

This ended the scoring as far as the afternoon game was concerned and although the Pels threatened in several innings the punch was not there to deliver, but with Craft pitching as he was—three runs would have been enough for this hurler to win three ball games.

The Morning Game.

The morning game yesterday was lost by the locals by the score of 11 to 7, which score calls up fond memories of when we won with these same figures. In spite of the fact that the Crackers put up a grand battle after they were hopelessly beaten, there was a hunch that the visiting Pelicans thought that the field day started yesterday morning at 9 o'clock instead of yesterday afternoon at 1:30. The way they slapped the ball around the lot, showed speed on the base paths and very generally played havoc with the plans of the Crackers to walk off with the morning game made the large crowd that attended the game think there was some sort of a misunderstanding.

When Oscar Tuero mounted the slab for the Crackers the fans in conclave assembled settled back to see a real ball game. That is they settled back with certain exceptions. However, when Umpire Williams seemed to get his right arm mixed with his left on Bogart's third strike in the opening inning the fans very promptly rose and the din from the stands must have caused fear to steal into the heart of Bogart for he promptly slapped out a double to left.

Williams, when behind the plate works hard—but he never shifts and on most occasions he is squarely behind the catcher when the ball crosses the plate. He is not equipped with x-ray eyes, and therefore it must be admitted that with nothing between him and the ball crossing the plate or missing it, except possibly the chest of a large catcher he does make some extraordinary guesses—in fact his average is rather high in this department.

But then as we said before the Crackers lost, in spite of their admirable fight in the middle of the game.

How They Scored.

We have related how Bogart doubled in the opening inning. Gilbert next up laid down a pretty bunt that he had beaten out a mile, but Tuero picked up the ball and heaved it wildly in the direction of Bernsen and Bogart pulled up and third and Gilbert at second. Tuero showed no impartiality in making his errors so when Henry laid down a bunt Tuero failed to pick it up at all, Bogart scoring, Gilbert was safe at third and Henry was perched on first. Tucker popped out the Smith. On an attempted double steal Gilbert was caught in a chase and was out Smith to Wano to Smith to Wano. Henry in the meantime had gone to third. Knaupp walked and on another double steal Henry was thrown out at the plate, Smith to Klugman to Smith.

In the second inning the field meet started. Smith doubled to center. Monroe walked. Dowie beat out an infield hit. Martina popped to Smith, Bogart forced Dowie at second, Smith scoring. Gilbert walked. Henry hit to center for one sack, scoring Monroe and Bogart. Tucker doubled to right, scoring Henry. Knaupp popped to Smith.

The Crackers scored one run in the second, Monroe walked after Mayer went out and went to third on Bernsen's long single. Moore scored on Wano's fielder's choice.

Suggs went in to pitch for the Crackers at the beginning of the third and R. Smith got his second double of the morning and scored on Monroe's infield out and Dowie's sacrifice fly. And in the fourth inning the visitors scored two more. Bogart walked. Gilbert was safe on Bernsen's error. Bogart going to third and Gilbert to second when Bernsen threw into left field after making a fine stop of Gilbert's hard-hit ball. Henry scored both runners with a single to center. Henry stole second but was caught going to third. Suggs to Wano. Knaupp flew out to Hock. R. Smith hit his second double but died on second when Hock captured Monroe's long fly to left.

The Crackers also scored two in the fourth. Guyon hit to second and Mayer lifted a high fly to Knaupp, who dropped the ball right at his feet and he tossed Joe Guyon out with all the nonchalance in the world, Moore doubled the left, scoring Mayer and Bernsen was safe on Knaupp's error. Wano forced Bernsen at second but Moore scored on the play. Smith flew out to center.

The Crackers scored three in the fifth. Suggs started the work with a double to center. He moved up a peg on Hock's hit that was too hot for Bogart to handle. Klugman flew out to center. Guyon scored both runners with a double to left. Mayer then laid down a bunt and Bogart's throw to the plate to catch Guyon was a little off and the Indian slid into and around Dowie safely and the Pel catcher was badly cut by Guyon's spikes.

In the sixth the Crackers pushed another around after Dobbs had relieved Martina and sent in Bailey. Wano hit to right. Smith was on when his hit was too hot for Henry. Suggs moved both runners up with a perfect sacrifice. Hock walked and Wano scored when Klugman forced Hock at second.

The Pelicans scored two in the ninth. Tucker doubled to left. Knaupp beat out a hit to Wano, R. Smith scored Tucker with his fourth double and Knaupp scored on Miljus' long fly to Mayer.

Guyon Wins Field Meet.

Joe Guyon walked away with the field meet that was held prior to the starting of the afternoon game, scoring 45 points. He won first prize in the 100-yard dash, the dash to first and circling the bases. Martina of the Pelicans won the second prize with 30 points.

Phillies Win 5-3.

Boston, July 4.—Because of rain and wet grounds, Philadelphia played only one game today instead of the scheduled doubleheader, Philadelphia winning 5 to 3. The visitors played under protests after Umpire McCormick had refused to permit Fletcher to play. Fletcher claimed that President Heydler had lifted his suspension, but the umpire said he had received no notice of this.

Giants-Dodgers Tie.

New York, July 4.—In one of the most spectacular games ever played at the Polo grounds, the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers battled to a 5-5 tie this afternoon. Wet grounds caused a postponement of the morning game. Rawlings tied the score for the Giants with a homer in the third with two on and the New Yorkers went into the lead in the seventh. Johnston brought in the tying run for Brooklyn in the ninth with a triple, but was caught at the plate trying to stretch the hit. Each team scored a run in the tenth and rain ended the game after the fourteenth inning.

JOHN WILSON KAYOES AL DEMARIS IN FOURTH

Rutland, Vermont, July 4.—Johnny Wilson, of Boston, middleweight champion, knocked out Al Demaris, of Indianapolis in the fourth round of a scheduled eight-round no-decision bout here today.

MARTIN LOST TO BRENNAN

Cliffside Park, Ashland, Ky., July 4.—Bill Brennan was given a newspaper decision over Bob Martin in a 12-round bout here this afternoon. Brennan showed considerable speed while Martin was slow and apparently waiting for a chance to land his fatal right. The fight was Brennan's from the start.

Large Crowd Sees Fine Holiday Race Meet at Lakewood--Unusual Thrills

Lancaster and Aiken Crash—Bob Luton Wins Feature Event and One Other.

On a compartively heavy track and before a surprisingly large crowd under the adverse weather conditions the patrons of Atlanta's shrine of speed were offered an excellent card of harness and running events and three of the most thrilling automobile races ever seen here.

Johnny Aiken, driving a Stutz mount, and the victor in the five-mile contest, skidded into Bob Luton, with an Essex entry, in the seven-mile race, going into the fourth trip around the circuit and in his attempt to pass Luton turned completely around three times and smashed into the fence demolishing his own left front and right rear wheels and Bob's right wheel. Neither of the boys received the slightest injury, however, and in what could have easily been a serious accident both of the boys came out unhurt.

In the feature event on the card, Joe Lancaster broke his steering knuckle and ran into the fence, but there were no other drivers close to him, and he was unhurt himself.

Considering the accidents, which were largely caused by wet spots in the track which did not thoroughly dry, the races were the most interesting seen at Lakewood in a long time.

The five-mile event was won by Johnny Aiken in a terrific battle with Bob Luton who led the first two miles but was overtaken Aiken who led him to the finish tape. The Stutz car showed lightning speed in the straightaways and Luton, driving some daredevil turns, had all he could do to stay with him on the curves.

Aiken and Luton Crash.

In the fourth mile of the seven-mile race Aiken and Luton were out in a smash and the red flag was given the other drivers calling the event off.

Aiken could not get his car in shape for the next start and Luton, with a new wheel on his mount, took this race after Trotzier led him two miles. Lancaster was third and Gray fourth.

The feature event, the ten-mile race, was won by Luton also with Trotzier finishing second. Aiken attempted to start again in this race but his axle was badly bent and he dropped out on the second lap. Lancaster was out with a broken steering knuckle on the seventh lap.

The horse card was unmarred by any accident and three of the harness events were run off. In the 2:30 pace. Guy Steele won two out of the three heats and took the race. Tansey was in the sulky and Dick Rogers, driving Decoration, took second money. June Coffee was third and Uncle Dan finished fourth.

Sarah Kelley, a Candler entry, won first money in the 2:20 trot with Lexington H at her heels. Cherry Abbe was third and Todd McGregor came in fourth.

Dixie May took first position in the 2:10 pace and Gurth Line was second with Sidney Fuller third.

LENGLEN WINS AT WIMBLEDON

Wimbledon, July 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the titleholder, defeated Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of California, in the women's singles of the grass court championships this afternoon after a hard struggle in the second set by the score of 6-1, 8-6.

J. O. Anderson, the Australian Davis cup player, won his way into the semi-finals of the men's singles in the grass court tennis championship today by defeating his teammate, Pat O'Hara Wood, in a hard-fought match, 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 2-6, 6-4.

Quitman Loses.

Quitman, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) Quitman was defeated here this morning in the first game of their double-header for today. The game was the fastest one played on the local diamond this season. The score was 2-2 until the eighth, when Daniel weakened, and with the aid of an error three runs were made.

He was removed for Swann, who held runners on second and third while three outs were made. Barrett earned the fielding crown of the game, with a catch in the first that he had to fall down to reach. McClellan drew the only three-base hit of the game, besides making a good exhibition behind the plate. Mickel tossed very consistent ball for the visitors.

The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Quitman	2	6	4
Valdosta	5	5	1

Batteries—Daniel, Swann, Barrett and McClellan; Mickel and Reid.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Little Rea Foot

BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Next Week, "False Faces"
By Hugh Kahler

Battle.

"We cross West river here," said I, "and go by the left bank in the same order of march, crossing the shoulder of the mountain by the Big Eddy, then fording the river once more, so as to take their ambuscade from the north and in the rear."

They seemed to understand. The Montagnais, in his new paint, [illegible] around behind me like some savage dog that trusts only his owner.

"Who first sights a Mohawk," said I, "shall not fire or try to take a scalp—to satisfy his own vanity and his desire for glory. No. He shall return to me and report what he sees. For it is my business to order the conduct of this battle. . . . March!"

We had forded West river, crept over the mountain's shoulder, recrossed the river roaring between its rounded and giant bowlders, and now were creeping southward toward the Big Eddy.

Suddenly Nick caught my arm in a nervous grasp, and "My God!" says he, "what is that in the tree—in the great hemlock yonder?"

And now we began to see their sharpshooters as we crawled forward, standing upright on limbs amid the foliage of great evergreens, to scan the trail ahead and the forest aisles below—these Mohawk panthers that would slay from above.

Under them, hidden close to the ground, lay their comrades on either side of the little ravine, through which the trail ran. We could not see them, but we never doubted they were there.

Four of their tree-cat scouts were visible: I made the sign; our rifles crashed out. And, hump! slap! thud! crash: down came their dead asprawling and bouncing on the dead leaves. And up rose their astounded comrades from every hollow, bush and windfall, only to drop flat at out rifles' crack, and no knowing if we had hit any among them.

A veil of smoke lay low among the ferns in front of us. There was a terrible silence in the forest, then screech on screech rent the air, as the panther slogan rang out from our unseen foes; and, like a dreadful echo, my Oneidas hurled their war cry back at them; and we all sprang to our feet and moved swiftly forward, crouching low in our own rifle smoke.

There came a short, and a cloud spread among the boughs of a tall hemlock; but the fellow left his tree and slid down on t'other side, like a squirrel, and my wild Saguenay was after him like a flash.

I saw Saguenay seize something, heard the mad struggle, and ran forward with Tahioni, only to hear the yelping scalpcry of the Montagnais, and see him, both knees on his victim's shoulders, ripping off the scalp, his arms and body spattered with blood.

I saw Tahioni chasing a strange Indian through a little hollow full of ferns; saw Godfrey Shew raise his rifle and kill the fugitive as coolly as though he were a running buck.

Over this distant ridge, like shadows, I could see somebody's light feet running, checkered against the sunshine beyond, and I fired, judging a man's height, if stooping. And saw something dark fall and roll down into a gully full o' last year's damp and rotting leaves.

Recharging my rifle, I strove to realize that I had slain.

The Screech-owl, locked in a death struggle with a young Mohawk, broke his arm, stabbed him, and took his scalp before I could run to his aid.

And there on the ground lay four other scalps, two of white children, with the Little Red Foot painted on all.

At the same instant I heard a great roaring and cursing and a crash among the river-side willows, and was horrified to see Nick down on his back a-clawing and tearing and cuffing a Mohawk warrior, who was clinging to him and striving to use his hatchet.

We made but a dozen leaps of it, and were in a waspnest of Mohawks ere we knew it.

I heard Nick roar again with pain and fury, but had my hands too full to succor him, for a wild beast painted yellow was choking me and wrestling me off my feet, and little Thiohero was fighting like a demon with her knife, on the water's edge.

The naked warrior I clutched was so vilely oiled that my fingers slipped over him as though it were an eel I plucked at, and his foul and stinking breath in my face was like a full fed bear's.

Then, as he strangled me, out of darkening eyes I saw his arm lifted—glimpsed the hatchet's sparkle—saw an arm seize his, saw a broad knife pass into his belly as though it had been butter—pass thrice, slowly, ripping upward so that he stood there, already gralloched, yet still breathing horribly and no bowels in him. . . . His falling hatchet clinked among the stones. Then he sank like a stricken bull, bellowed, and died.

And, as he fell, I heard my Saguenay gabbling, "Brother! brother!" in my ears, and felt his hand timidly seeking mine.

But now in my ears rang a distressful crying, like a gentle wild thing wounded to the death; and I saw two Mohawks had got the little maid of Askalege between them, and were drowning her in the Big Eddy.

I ran out into the water. Tahioni, her brother, came in a flying leap from the bank above me, and all four went down under water as I reached them.

They came up blinded, staggering, one by one, and I got Thiohero by the hair, where she lay in shallow water, and dragged her ashore behind me.

Then came a thrashing, splashing roar like a deer herd crossing a marshy creek, and, below us, I saw a dozen Mohawks leap into the water and thrash their way over. And not a rifle among us that was dry enough to take a toll of our enemies crossing the West river plain in sight!

Lord, what a day! And not fought as I had pictured battles. No! For it was blind combat, and neither managed as planned nor in any kind of order or discipline. Nor did we ever, as I have said, discover how many enemies were opposed to us. And I am certain they believed that a full regiment had struck their rear; otherwise, I think Sacrement. . . . And I wrote all down.

"Is there more?" I asked, looking at him with utter loathig.

it had proven a very bloody business for me and my people.

Lord, Lord! What a battle! For all were filthy with blood, and there were brains and hair and guts sticking to knives and hatchets, and bodies and limbs all smeared. Good God! Was this war? And the green flies already whirling around us in the sunshine, and settling on the faces of the dead!—

The little maid of Askalege, leaning on her brother's shoulder, was coughing up water she had swallowed.

Nick, with a bloody sconce, but no worse damage, sat upon a rock and washed out his clotted hair.

"Hell!" quoth he, when he beheld me. "Here be I with a broken poll, and yonder goes the Indian who gave it to me."

"Sit still, idiot!" said I, and set the ranger's whistle to my lips.

White and red, my men came running from their ferocious hunting. Not a man was missing.

We had taken ten scalps; and, as only Johnny Silver among my white people fancied such trophies, my Oneidas skinned the noddies of our quarry, and, like all Indians, counted any scalp a glory, no matter whose knife or bullet dropped the game.

As for me, my throat was so swollen and bruised I could scarce speak or swallow.

However, there was work still to be done, so I took Godfrey and Luysnes, the Screech-owl, and the Water-snake; motioned Yellow Leaf, the Montagnais to follow, and set off across West river, determined to drive our enemies so deep into the wilderness that they would nver forget the Big Eddy.

Back to the Lodge.

The sun was high when our sentinel hailed a detail from Fish House, bringing us a sheep, three sacks of corn, and a keg of fresh milk.

I had bathed me in the Vlaie Water, had eaten soupaan, turned over my command to Nick, and now was ready to report in person to the commandant at Summer House Point.

My Saguenay and I set forth by canoe.

Presently a Continental on guard hailed our canoe. We landed. A corporal came, then a sergeant—one Caspar Quant, whom I knew—and so we were passed on, my Indian and I.

Saluted, and the officer's salute rendered, he became curious to see the fresh scalps flapping at my Saguenay's girdle, and the new war-paint and the oil smelling rank in the sweet air.

But I told him nothing, asking only for the commandant, who, he gave account, was a certain Major Westfall, lodging at the summer house.

So I passed the gate and walked toward the lodge. Sir John's blooded cattle were grazing ahead, and I saw Flora at the well, and Colas busy among beds of garden flowers, spading and weeding under the south porch.

And I saw something else that halted me. For, seated upon a low limb of an apple tree, her two little feet hanging down, and garbed in pink-flowered chintz and snowy fichu, I beheld Penelope Grant, a-knitting.

And by all the pagan gods!—there in a ring arouynd her strolled and lolled a dozen Continental officers in buff and blue and gold!

There was no reason why, but the scene chilled me.

"Have you been in battle?" Penelope asked.

"Yes."

After a silence. "I am most happy that you returned in safety."

"Did you ever—ever think of me?" I asked.

"Why, yes," she replied in surprise.

"I thought," said I, "that being occupied—and so greatly sought after by so many gallants—that you might easily have forgotten me."

She laughed and plucked a grass-blade.

"I did forget you," she said.

"That is amazing,' said I, "—a maid so run after and so courted."

She plucked another blade of grass and so sat, pulling at the tender verdure, her head bent so that I could not see what her eyes were thinking, but her lips seemed graver.

"Tell me," said I, "are you happy?"

"I am contented. I love my Mrs. Swift. I love and pity Lady Johnson. . . . Yes, I am happy."

"I know they both love you," said I. "So you should be happy hcere. . . . And admired as you are by all men. . . ."

Again she laughed in her enchanting little way, and bent her bright head. And, presently:

"John Drogue?"

"I hear you, Penelope."

"Do you wish warm woolen stockings for your men?"

"Why—yes."

"I sent to Caydutta lodge for the garments. They are in the house. You shall choose for yourself and your men before the Continentals take their share."

I was touched, and thanked her. And now, it being near the noon hour, we walked together to the house.

The partition which Sir John had made for a gun-room, and which now served to enclose Penelope's chamber, was all hung with stout woolen stockings of her own knitting; and others lay on her trundle-bed. So I admired and handled and praised these sober fruits of her diligence and foresight, and we corded up some dozen pair for my white people, and I stuffed them into my soldier's leather sack.

Then I took her hands and said my thanks, and she looked at me and answered, "you are welcome, John Drogue."

I do not know what possessed me to put my arm around her. She flushed deeply. I kissed her, and it went to my head.

I had been welcomed like a brother by Polly Johnson. Claudia, too, made a little fete of my return, unscathed from my first war-trail. And after I had completed my report to the Continental major, who proved complacent to the verge of flattery, I was free to spend the day at the Summer House—or, rather, I was at liberty to remain as long a time as it took a well-mounted express to ride to Johnstown with my report and return with further orders from Colonel Dayton for me and my small command.

Qucer Questions.

"Penelope?"

"I am attentive, sir."

"I suppose all maids enjoy admiration."

"I suppose so."

"Hum! And do you?"

"La, sir. I am a maid also."

"And enjoy it?"

"Yes, sir. . . . Do not you?"

"What?"

"Do not you enjoy admiration? Is admiration displeasing to young men?"

"Well—no," I admitted "Only it is well to be armed with experience—hum-hum—and discretion when one encounters the flattery of admiration."

"Yes, sir. . . . Are you so armed, Mr. Drogue?"

At a loss to answer, I finally admitted that flattery was a subtle foe and that perhaps experience had not wholly armed me against that persuasive enemy.

"Nor me," said she, with serene candour. "And I fear that I lack as much in knowledge and experience as I do in years, Mr. Drogue. For I think no evil, nor perhaps even recognize it when I meet it, deeming the world kind, and all folk unwilling to do me a wrong."

"I—kissed you."

"Was that a wrong you did me?"

"Have not otthers kissed you?" said I, turning red and feeling mean.

But she laughed outright, telling me that it concerned herself and not me what she chose to let her lips endure.

At that I caught her white hand and kissed it; and she blushed and sat smiling in absent fashion, while I retained it.

"You use me sans facon," she murmured at last. "Do you use other women so?"

"You ask me questions," said I, "but answer none o' mine."

But, ere I could speak again, comes an express a-galloping; and we saw him dismount at the mainland gate and come swiftly across the orchard.

"My orders," said I, and went to the edge of the veranda.

The letter I received was from Colonel Dayton.

"I go back tonight," said I.

"To the forest?"

"To the trail by the Drowned Lands."

"Will you come soon again?"

"Do you wish it?"

"Yes, John Drogue."

Rehearsal for Big Vaudeville Assures Excellence of Show

A rehearsal of the big vaudeville extravaganza to be given Monday and Friday nights, at the auditorium as a benefit for the Retail Merchants' association, was held Monday night at the Atlanta theater. Judging from the rehearsal, the show is going over in great shape, and will mark one of the high points in Atlanta theatrical productions.

The program will consist of dancing, vaudeville acts, with both local and imported players, and excellent musical numbers. The music will include many opera airs, given by a chorus of 75 selected voices from the Atlanta Opera club and trained by Signor Emilio Volpi.

One hundred fifty persons will take part in the performance. Members of the Forsyth players have been acting as instructors in connection with several of the comedy features, and have warmly commended the ability of their pupils. Lucian York, formerly associated with the famous George Primrose minstrel, has obtained one of his acts for the show as well as one of his big song hits, "Lazy Moon."

It is announced that other rehearsals will be held during the week. The Atlanta merchants are picking over their entire stock of beautiful and costly gowns for creations to be worn by Atlanta debutantes who will act as models.

Tickets are now on sale for the production.

Malone Declares. Fight on Catholics Lost Him Position

In a statement given out Tuesday by John N. Malone, who was beaten Monday for re-election as city tax assessor, by J. C. Little, Mr. Malone charged his defeat to prejudice against him on account of his Catholic religion, and to his failure to join with the "standpatters" in their fight to keep the old form of government intact. He said:

"For thirty-three years I have been in the service of the city of Atlanta, and for the last twelve years have been on the board of tax assessors. Throughout this period—the greater part of my life. I have always tried to render efficient and loyal service, and am now retiring from office fully conscience that my defeat was in no sense due to failure to measure, up to the duties on my office.

"When I became a tax assessor, I had behind me more than twenty years, experience in that department of the city, and from time to time the patrons of the office were kind enough to tell me that my service was of a high order. For a number of years I was returned without opposition, and not until four or five years ago did opposition to my incumbency begin to assert itself.

"This opposition at first was based entirely on religious intolerance, which has since asserted itself in other departments of the city on numerous occasions, having been successful at times and unsuccessful at others. I realize that my defeat at the hands of council Monday was due partly to this spirit of relegious intolerance and partly to the work of certain politicians who are seeking a position of domination over all municipal affairs.

"The opposition of these politicians was incurred by my refusal a short while ago to join with them in a movement in behalf of the present city charter, which was running before the people with another proposed form of government. It had ever been my policy to avoid partisan campaigns of this nature and devote my full time to the duties of my office; therefore, I declined to take a part in this campaign.

"I am proud of the fact that I am retiring from office after thirty-three years, fully conscious that my defeat was not accomplished because I ever failed to do my full duty.

"I want to thank my friends in and out of council for their support. I am much more greatful that I can express in words.

Loew Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)

The all-star vaudeville bill which has been pleasing patrons of Loew's Grand theater since the first of the week will terminate its Atlanta engagement with tonight's performances. Angon and Adelon have a very entertaining offering, musical moments from Broadway shows, that is one of the hits of the program. Mr. Angon is an eccentric comedian with an original way of amusing his audience and Miss Adelon adds to the act, with songs and dances.

An athletic offering out of the ordinary is furnished by Martin and Boise. Hand to hand balancing and gymnastic feats that are startling in their execution are contributed by them, bringing liberal applause by their daring.

Other acts are Charles and Sadie McDonald and Company in a one-act comedy playlet, "The Inspector;" Hilda LeRoy, in popular songs and Keepie and Kewpie in artistic charcter dances. The feature of the screen bill is Alice Calhoun in "The Matrimonial Web."

At the Howard.

"School Days."

Before Wesley Barry, the freckle-faced screen luminary, ever made his appearance before the studio camera he was one of those neighborhood terrors that Booth Tarkington loves so to write about. In other words he was and still is a regular kid possessing the untamable, irresponsible heart of boyhood.

In his latest starring vehicle, Gus Edwards' "School Days," which is shown at the Howard theater this week, he applies all the tricks of the average boy in the school room and makes life miserable for his teacher. The glory, the joys and the disappointments of boyhood are still with Wesley, but he longs to be a grown up and wear long pants n' everything.

"Civilian Clothes."

(At the Forsyth.)

"Civilian Clothes" is proving to be one of the most acceptable offerings so far attempted by the Forsyth Players and is giving John Litel his first real opportunity to display his worth and he is going over with the proverbial "bang."

The crowds that are taking advantage of this after the war comedy have been extremely large and it would not be at all surprising if "Civilian Clothes" did not establish a new record for attendance at the Forsyth.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

Grant All-Stars Lose.

The Kincaid cotton mills No. 2 defeated the Grant All-Stars of Atlanta 7 to 1 on the fouth. The game was close and interesting until the eighth inning when the All-Stars blew up. The All-Stars defeated Griffin earlier in the season and will play off the tie now existing in the near future. Before the game the All-Stars were treated to a large barbecue. Dumon and London led in the hitting for the winners, while the pitching of Mutt Turner was a feature.

Grant All-Stars	000 001 000	1	3	4
Griffin	020 000 05x	7	8	0

World's Fair Wins.

Milstead, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—The World's Fair won from Milstead here today before a great crowd by the score of 7 to 4.

The home team could do nothing with Homerun Thaxton, who was pitching for the Fair team. Thaxton lived up to his name and got a home run, a two-base hit and two singles out of four times up. Anglin and "Lefty" Parker got three hits each and the rest of the Fair team played their usual good game of ball.

Barnhart, White and Vandergriff, who are regular players on the Fair team, played with Milstead today and played great ball driving in most of Milstead runs. The batteries were Thaxton and Anglin for World's Fair, and Stephenson and Vandergriff for Milstead.

Lithonia Wins.

Lithonia, Ga., July 4.—Lithonia defeated Porterdale in a very fast game here today by the score of 3 to 2. It was a pitcher's battle between Sells for the home team and Duncan for the visitors. Both teams played jam-up ball. Lithonia would like to arrange a game with some team in or around Atlanta for Saturday, the 8th. Call Dr. W. A. Webb, Lithonia.

Battling Budd Kayos Kennedy

Athens, Ga., July 4.—(Special.)—Battling Bud, of Atlanta, knocked out Fighting Joe Kennedy, of New York, in the seventh round of a ten-round go, after having been floored by Kennedy for the first time in his career in the fifth round. The fighters offered the main show of a strong fight card staged in Sanford field by the American Legion as a feature of the Fourth of July celebration. An immense throng, estimated at 5,000 people, filled the grandstands and cheered the fighters.

Kid Young, of Atlanta, and Kid Levine, of Birmingham, fought to an eight-round draw in the semi-finals, and Torpedo Harris, of Atlanta, scrapped his way to a decision over Johnny Nelson, of Savannah, in four rounds of preliminary milling. Max Goldman, of Athens, was referee.

HOWARD

M'CUMBER ADMITS HE IS DISGUSTED

Washington, July 4.—Senator McCumber, in charge of the tariff bill, has in his pocket a petition signed by some three score republicans who favor clamping down cloture on the tariff debate.

They weary North Dakotan, who has passed up and down the senate aisles for weeks purring away on the measure that marked the climax of his political career, doesn't know whether to attempt the "gag" or not. During the long hours of discussion, he has seen the senate attendance dwindle from a mere quorum to the point where he was virtually alone, explaining to the galleries, the schedules in the bill. Monday he witnessed an early adjournment because it appeared a physical impossibility to maintain sufficient listeners to constitute a quorum.

He's disgusted—said so Tuesday. He remained on the job when others were wrecking the political fences he spent 24 years building. He banged away to a lonesome chamber on his party's tariff while his party's voters went to the polls recently and elected to throw him out of public life. While occupying the most important position in the senate and in charge of the most important measure the administration has, the political ground was removed from under his feet, because, he feels, he was unable to get back home to tell his own constituents what he was doing for them.

He has a petition which will make it possible for him to move to limit debate on the tariff—the bill which crowned his political success and attention to which he believes caused his downfall. He would like to end discussion of it, or, at least, speed such decision so that other republican senators would share his attention to it.

"I would discuss the question with some of the senators Wednesday," he said Tuesday night. "I don't know yet what I will do."

Administration leaders doubt whether the two-thirds majority vote necessary for imposing cloture can be obtained. The democrats would likely oppose it almost to a man.

KID PECK KAYOES KID BARTLETT

Columbus, Ga., July 4.—(Special.) Kid Peck, featherweight champion of the south, scored another knockout here at the Driving Park arena this afternoon in two minutes and fifty seconds of a scheduled ten-round main go with Kid Bartlett, of Charleston, S. C. Just prior to the main go Judge A. W. Cozart on behalf of the Georgia department of the American Legion and the Charles S. Harrison post presented Peck with a gold belt, signifying the featherweight title of the state.

Peck announced to newspaper men just before the bout opened that he would trim the Charleston lad or give the belt back and he carried out his word. There were about two thousand fans present to see the most expensive card ever staged here.

Switzerland has minted the smallest coin weight .33225805 of a gramme.

Democratic Line Still Forming on the Right

The latest election news from Frederick, Md., where the democrats elected their mayor, city tax collector and five aldermen by a large majority on June 13, is in line with the results of municipal elections this year all over the country. As fast as the people have a chance to express themselves at the polls they repudiate republican reactionism by throwing out republican officials or re-elect a democrat. This is truly a democratic year.
